Seek Reason For Pioneer's Failure

Army Gets Chance In December

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—Weary Air Force missiles, their dream of moon conquest shattered for now, Saturday attempted to solve the mystery of why moon rocket Pioneer II fizzled in flight after a brilliant launching.

The 52-ton rocket, carrying a top-shaped moon satellite, roared off to a beautiful start at 2:30 a.m. but the flight ended less than 45 minutes later when the third main stage rocket failed to ignite.

It was one of the most spectacular launches ever witnessed at the cape. The area was illuminated for miles as a light cloud cover reflected the bright flash of rocket fire.

The third—and as of now final—Air Force bid to place a satellite around the moon failed at an altitude of 1,000 miles, far short of its 200,000-mile distant target. The mighty rocket tumbled and disintegrated in the earth's atmosphere somewhere over central Africa, about 7,500 miles from the launching site.

Even as scientists studied flight performance data to pinpoint the trouble, Army moon probes were waiting in the wings.

It is expected that the Army will get the first of its two chances to "shoot the moon" about Dec. 5.

High hopes rode with the rocket as it blasted majestically skyward. The odds for success still were 1 in 10, but they were the same when Pioneer I streaked 79,000 miles out of this world just a month ago.

The Air Force announced 10 minutes after lift-off that the three main stages had fired and separated successfully and that "launching of the moon rocket now has been accomplished."

However, minutes later a radio interrogation check with the missile showed there was trouble. Although the third stage and its 66.3-pound satellite payload separated, the third stage did not ignite.

The needed a velocity of 23,900 miles an hour to give the satellite enough thrust to get into space to be drawn in by the gravity pull of the moon. The fastest Pioneer II ever went was 16,000 miles an hour.

Except for a few minor hitches everything functioned perfectly during the final phase of the 12-hour preliminary countdown that preceded zero hour.

The goal was to plop the satellite with an infra-red scanner into a brief orbit some 50,000 miles from the moon after a 2½-day journey through outer space.

The first Air Force moon rocket fired Aug. 17 blew up 77 seconds after launching. The second, Oct. 11, was a daring stab into space that traveled 79,000 miles before it was lured back by the earth's stronger gravity pull and burned up.

To Charge Driver Of Car That Killed 7 With Manslaughter

NORWALK, Ohio (AP)—The only survivor of a head-on collision on the Ohio turnpike that took seven lives said Saturday a woman companion was the driver of the car that sped eastward in a westbound lane.

But police doubted his story of the Friday night accident and prepared manslaughter charges against him. He has a record of a dozen arrests for traffic violations, once for driving the wrong way on a one-way street.

President Names George Lodge To Subcabinet Post

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower Saturday appointed George C. Lodge, son of U.N. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge, to the $20,000-a-year post as assistant secretary of labor for international affairs.

Lodge, who at 31 will be one of the youngest subcabinet officials in many years, will succeed J. Ernest Wilkins, 62, a Chicago Negro attorney who resigned effective Saturday citing personal reasons.

The White House made public the resignation and appointment as the President was en route to a Seattle speaking engagement. The change in the Labor Department post had been rumored for many weeks prior to the recent elections. Wilkins has been reported in line for another federal appointment, possibly a judgeship.

Lodge's new assignment will require Senate confirmation later. It involves representing the United States at the annual Geneva meetings of the International Labor Organization.

Although his main job has been that of information director, Lodge has attended the ILO meetings for the last four years in various capacities. Earlier this year he was made a special assistant to Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell for international affairs and alternate delegate and adviser to the U.S. delegation to the ILO meeting.

COMPETITION IN CIRCUS WORLD

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP)—Circus officials announced Saturday establishment of the Clyde Beatty-Cole Bros. Combined Shows. It will be billed as the world's largest circus under the big top.

Officials of Sarasota Equipment Co. said the new show will open with a six-week engagement in April at Palisades Park, N.J. The announcement left no doubt that the new organization plans to compete with the Ringling Bros. Barnum & Bailey Circus, which opens a week later at Madison Square Garden in New York.

The action actually amounts to a revamping of the Beatty show. Cole Bros. Circus, a pioneer in the field, has been a circus in name only for several years.

Britain Will Arm Civilians In Cyprus

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP)—Britain announced Saturday it will arm its civilians in this crown colony for protection against attacks by EOKA, the terrorist Greek Cypriot underground.

The announcement came from Government House. Public clamor sounded back in Britain for sterner action to halt a wave of slayings of Britons on Cyprus.

The announcement said district security committees throughout the island are authorized to issue arms to British civilians who ask for them.

Bloodshed continued Saturday night. A bomb exploded in a canteen at a Royal Air Force base in Nicosia, killing two British airmen and wounding seven others. Two of the wounded were said to be in serious condition.

Official announcement blamed the bombing on EOKA. EOKA gunmen have killed 9 British civilians and 14 servicemen since starting a new offensive five weeks ago.

The move to arm civilians was first disclosed by Maj. Gen. Kenneth Darling, director of anti-EOKA operations.

"If they want arms they can have them," he told a news conference, "and we would see that they can use a revolver and look after it."

"If you see a map with a pin stuck in for every civilian's house and place of work, and imagine these civilians going and coming to work, it is a terribly untidy problem—not one to be faced in the purely military sphere," Darling said.

The general claimed the army is in firm control and tightening the screws on EOKA.

He appealed to civilians not to travel unnecessarily and to avoid doing the same things the same way day by day. Two British bank officials were shot dead last week as they left their offices for lunch.

In London, some members of the ruling Conservative party were pressing Colonial Secretary Alan Lennox-Boyd for action.

Robert Speir, Conservative party member, will take the floor in the House of Commons next Wednesday to demand appointment of a military governor for Cyprus, reliable informants said. There was rising support in Parliament for the appointment of Field Marshal Sir Gerald Templer, who scored successes against Communist terrorists in the jungles of Malaya when he was British governor there.

Sir Hugh Foot, the governor of Cyprus who opened his administration with measures of conciliation, is a civilian. He turned to sterner measures when EOKA ended its self-imposed truce last month.

Police said James A. Johnson admitted drowning the children, hiding the bodies, and then going to a movie Friday. Lt. Russell Baughan, head of the Police Juvenile Division, said Johnson had showed "absolutely no remorse."

Baughan said the boy was talkative until asked questions about a motive.

"Then he just shrugs his shoulders and give us an 'I don't know,'" Baughan said.

The body of Beverly Conway, 4, whose clothing was removed, was found in the attic of Johnson's home early Saturday. Her body was wrapped in a rug, bathrobe, and sheet.

Minutes later, searchers ended a 15-hour hunt when the body of Wayne Timothy Conway, 3, was found buried in a shallow ditch beside Johnson's house. Wayne's body was wrapped in a blanket and sheet.

The United States and Britain are determined that the Geneva talks get down at once to the task of working out means of getting an international control system functioning. The Western powers believe that represents the only safe and meaningful way of organizing a ban on testing.

One Western informant said the fact two Soviet explosions were detected this month did not prove these were the only tests conducted in the Soviet Union. Actually, the source said, there is no way of checking on deep underground tests, short of the establishment of an intricate international control system.

In a private conversation one senior Soviet official played down the whole idea of a control system. But he said the Kremlin is willing to go along with this idea because of American insistence. He noted that a draft agreement on cessation of tests, submitted by the Russians at the opening of the conference, contained five clauses of which two dealt with a control system.

Secretary of State Dulles is presiding over the four-day session. Lower-ranking officials and economic experts from all of the member nations have compiled an economic review and made recommendations for the ministers to consider.

Officials pointed out that nowhere in the Communist world does there exist comparable machinery for free governments to exchange plans and compare problems.

Its members in South and Southeast Asia include India, Pakistan, Ceylon, Malaya, Burma, Cambodia, Nepal, Indonesia, Laos, Viet Nam, Thailand and the Philippines, and the British colonies of Singapore, Borneo and Sarawak.

Advanced industrial nations outside the area helping these recipient countries are Australia, Canada, New Zealand, Japan, the United Kingdom, and the United States.

American aid alone has mounted to more than four billion dollars since 1950.

3 Cuban Rebels Killed In Raid On Arsenal

HAVANA, Cuba (AP)—Three rebels were killed Saturday in a police raid on an apartment arsenal in the southern section of Havana. Two police officers and a woman in the apartment building were wounded.

A government announcement said the dead were a veteran rebel chieftain, Angel Alemeleira Delgado and two revolutionary aides. It said a woman wounded in the pre-dawn fray, Norma Borrás Reyes, was a known member of the revolutionary movement.

The government declared the group had planned to assassinate important government figures and was plotting an attack on the National Bank of Cuba next week.

Police and military intelligence agents staged the raid. They were met with machine gun and pistol fire and hand grenades. They said they found guns, ammunition, rebel arm bands and "Communist subversive and revolutionary propaganda" in the apartment as well as a floor plan of the bank.

U.S., Soviet Split Over Aims Of Geneva Talks

Soviet Sees No Need For Control

GENEVA (AP)—Soviet officials said privately Saturday prompt Western detection of the latest Soviet nuclear blast proved how little the major powers need an international control system to police a test ban.

Existing detection systems in the United States, Britain and the Soviet Union are so advanced, they maintained, that none of the three atomic powers can fool the others by sneaking tests.

Furthermore, the Russians advanced this claim without a hint of apology for the fact that the Soviet Union set off two blasts after the American-British-Soviet nuclear talks had begun Oct. 31.

Instead, the Russians tried to turn the coin over. They insisted the two explosions and their discovery by the West supported the Soviet thesis that the major aim of the Geneva conference must be the conclusion of an agreement on immediate and permanent cessation of atomic and hydrogen weapons tests.

Western sources said they anticipated this Soviet reaction. They added, however, that as long as the Russians cling to this line, it is difficult to see how the conference can break its present deadlock.

Ike Interrupts Trip To Colombo Meeting To Visit His Brother

TACOMA, Wash. (AP)—President Eisenhower arrived Saturday night for a family visit in advance of a Colombo Conference address, and found a round of golf with a sharp-playing elder brother awaiting him if weather permits.

Eisenhower's plane arrived at nearby McChord Air Force Base at 5:04 p.m. PST after a flight from Toledo, Ohio, where he bagged his limit of ducks on each of two hunting expeditions in Lake Erie marshlands.

He was met at McChord by his brother, Edgar, Tacoma attorney who is anxious to get the President on the golf course Sunday if a forecast of mostly sunny weather holds good after heavy rain here Saturday.

Edgar, 69, is the present Pacific Northwest senior golf champion and regularly travels the par 72 Tacoma Golf and Country Club course in around 70. The score won't be announced, as customary when the President plays, but Edgar commented previously "When he's out of office I'll tell you how badly I beat him."

Quiet family dinners at the Edgar Eisenhower home are planned for Saturday night and Sunday. On Monday the President will travel to Seattle for the Colombo Plan meeting.

He will address the opening session of the Colombo ministers' meeting, over which Secretary of State Dulles will preside.

FAIRFAX, Va. (AP)—The fall festival and cake sale of the Fairfax Elementary School PTA opened Saturday.

Business is brisk. Eighty tons of missiles are helping launch sales of what the PTA advertises as Out of This World cakes. Space hot dogs and Moon Juice-lemmonade.

The Parent-Teacher Assn. members are delighted. They are also astonished. They hadn't planned a tabled Cape Canaveral.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Porter, co-chairmen of the affair decided the theme of the modest festival should be based on the space age.

Porter wrote to the Air Force at Ft. George G. Meade, Md. Did it have a display of some kind it could send? You bet it did. The Army sent a Nike-Ajax. A real one.

When the Army missile made its appearance on the school grounds, the Navy, Air Force and National Guard heard about it and decided to show their wares, too.

A Navy Talos missile on a flatbed truck on display. So is a real Vanguard satellite.

A two-room hut erected by the Air Force contains a lunar probe display.

In the school cafeteria a Junior outway stretches to the ceiling. Nearby are models of an Army Explorer and an Air Force Thor.

Two indoor rooms are filled with an Army missile touring display. And the cakes are going like—well, hot cakes. Out of This World varieties are selling for $1.50. The down-to-earth kind you can get for a buck.

GERMANS TO TAKE PART IN NATO MANEUVERS

BONN, Germany (AP)—The West German Navy is sending five minesweepers into the six-nation NATO naval and air exercises in the east Atlantic Nov. 16-28. The German squadron is under Cmdr. Hans Dehnert, 43.

U.S. Insists Inspection Is Needed

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States and the Soviet Union split openly Saturday over the aim of talks opening Monday in an effort to guard all countries against the peril of a nuclear surprise attack.

The State Department, in a note made public here, told the Russians in polite but firm language that the Geneva talks must be limited to work on technical military problems involved in eliminating the surprise element.

The Soviets, in a note a week ago, had spoken of definite moves in the field of disarmament. This was read here as meaning insistence on immediate agreement on a disarmament inspection zone in Eastern Europe.

Secretary of State Dulles told a news conference Friday he was not discouraged about disarmament. But his subordinates in the State Department are divided over whether the Western powers are really getting anywhere in their talks with the Russians. Some experts are convinced that whatever their long range aim, the Soviets' immediate motive probably is to weaken Western forces rather than to move toward disarmament.

Others contend that the dangers of a nuclear war are so great that the leaders in Moscow must seek at least limited disarmament measures in good faith and for their own protection. According to this theory, they would move cautiously, however, attempting to wring every advantage possible for themselves.

In the talks on suspending nuclear tests, which opened at Geneva a week ago, Soviet negotiators have been insisting on a permanent ban on such testing. They have set that out as a condition to stopping their own test explosions and negotiating an inspection system to enforce the ban.

Most authorities here seem to believe that in following this strategy the Russians are trying to get an end to testing without paying the price of inspection. The Western Powers have always maintained that inspection is essential in view of the Soviet Union's vast areas and police state secrecy.

Commission On Lutheran Unity To Meet March 5

CHICAGO (AP)—The Joint Commission on Lutheran Unity will meet in Chicago March 5 to review the first draft of a constitution for a proposed new three million member Lutheran church.

As the 50-member commission wound up a two-day meeting Friday night, it put off until the March meeting a decision on naming the projected body. Representatives of the four Lutheran groups Saturday reported progress in their merger plans.

The four groups began merger talks in 1956. Present plans call for actual union by 1962.

A constitution committee was appointed and requested to have a first draft ready for discussion at the March meeting. Much of this week's meeting was spent discussing such premerger matters and pastors' pensioners.

Noted Speakers In Literature, Science To Visit This City

MacMurray College will bring the editor of Atlantic Monthly to Jacksonville for a lecture on books, Tuesday, Nov. 11, at 8 p.m., in Ann Marshall Orr Auditorium.

Edward Weeks, one of the foremost speakers on the literary scene, will speak on "New Books on the American Horizon." His appearance is also partially sponsored by the local chapter of the American Association of University Women. There will be an admission charge, although the subsequent four lectures at MacMurray will be free to the public.

With a highly successful publishing career behind him and the author of several distinguished books of his own, Weeks is in the judgment of his contemporaries a worthy successor to such famous editors of The Atlantic as James Russell Lowell, William Dean Howells, Thomas Bailey Aldrich, Horace E. Scudder, Walter Hines Page, Bliss Perry, and Ellery Sedgwick.

Weeks is now in his 20th year as editor of The Atlantic, which this year celebrates its 100th anniversary. Under his direction, this famous literary magazine has broken all records in circulation: it had 100,000 readers when he took it; the sale today passes a quarter of a million in its big issues.

Indian Princess To Speak
He is the first of five guest lecturers at MacMurray this year, according to an announcement by Dr. McKendree M. Blair, college chaplain and chairman of the Lecture Series.

Mrs. Rajkumari Amrit Kaur, one of the leading women of India, will speak at 7:30 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 23, in Annie Merner Chapel. During the service, she will be awarded an honorary degree by the college.

Descended from a princely family, Miss Kaur was an Indian delegate to the UNESCO Conference held in London in 1945 and in Paris in 1946. From 1947 to 1957 Miss Kaur served as Minister of Health for the government of India. She was secretary to Mahatma Gandhi for 15 years.

Space Expert To Speak
Returning to the campus after receiving an honorary doctorate at MacMurray last June, Erica Anderson will appear at 7:30, Sunday, Dec. 7, in Merner Chapel. She will show her documentary film of Albert Schweitzer, which recently won her an Oscar. It was taken at Dr. Schweitzer's headquarters in Lamborene, Africa.

The former chairman of the British Interplanetary Society, Arthur C. Clarke, and a space expert, will speak March 12 at MacMurray.

He will attempt to describe in non-technical terms the problems still to be overcome before man's flight into space becomes a reality. He answers such questions as—what will we face when we make a landing on the moon? When will we reach the planets? What form of life will we meet there?

The finale to this year's lecture series will be April 9, 1959, at 11 a.m., in Merner Chapel, when Burr Shaefer, the cartoonist, will speak.

He will talk on "Through History With J. Wesley Smith," a book published by Mr. Shaefer.

Cattle Feeders Learn High-Moisture Corn Makes Superior Feed

Farmers of this area who attended Cattle Feeders Day at the University of Illinois Friday were told that cattle prefer high-moisture corn over field dried corn and that they do better on it, requiring about 10% less grain on a dry matter basis to make the same gain.

Two northern Illinois farmers told of their experiences with using ground ear corn and shelled corn that averaged about 30 per cent moisture when put in conventional silos or in the air-tight harvesters.

E. L. Hansen of the agricultural engineering department discussed the problems of handling high-moisture corn. He pointed out, however, that there is much less field loss when harvesting the crop when it is holding 30 per cent moisture.

In his tests there was a field loss, using a combine with a picker head, of 8.6 bushels per acre when the corn tested 33 per cent moisture and a loss of only 4.8 bushels when it tested 30 per cent. Losses went up again as the corn dried out: 7.4 bushels at 25 per cent and 7.9 bushels at 18 per cent.

Labor, Feed Saver
"The best part of handling high-moisture corn is that you get it out of the field early, ahead of the weather. Picking losses are much lower. And you have feed that is ready to feed, stored away in a rodent and weather-tight structure," Hansen said.

He estimated the cost of a concrete silo is about the same as a wire crib, "but it will last much longer with less annual maintenance costs."

LeRoy Toms of Dixon is very enthusiastic about high-moisture corn. He has a 420 acre farm and raises nothing but corn.

He pulls a trailer following his corn picker which carries a hammermill powered by V-8 automobile engine and the ground ear corn is blown into a dump wagon. Picking is begun when the moisture is down to about 35 per cent and the crop is stored in six concrete silos, which is unloaded automatically by an overhead device.

Water Is Added
If the corn gets too dry toward the end of the season he adds some water to it as it is being blown into the silo. He feeds 500-600 head of cattle each year. They are housed in a roofed, concrete-floored feeding shed in rather close confinement.

He reported that one bunch of cattle, 200 head averaging 725 pounds, was fed last year for 120 days. They ate about 30 pounds of the corn daily, along with a pound and a half of 20 per cent protein molasses and a quarter pound of mineral. They gained 2.6 pounds per day.

Paul Willert of Malta told of his experiences with storing high-moisture ground ear corn and shelled corn in harvesters. He has eight of them. They are equipped with a bottom unloading device and some of them are coupled with automatic auger-fed feed bunks which "is really a push-button set-up." He uses a picker-sheller when the corn dries down at 35 per cent.

Last year he fed 315 head of Montana cattle that weighed 800 pounds for 120 days and got a daily gain of 2.76 pounds.

Dick Carlisle served as moderator of the panel discussion.

Jella BPW Of Visit Behind Iron Curtain

The Jacksonville Business and Professional Woman's Club was favored with a very interesting talk by Dr. Ruth Church, deputy director of the Illinois Department of Health, at the meeting Thursday, Nov. 6, at the Dunlap Hotel.

Dr. Church is a graduate nurse, an M. D., and has worked in public health before becoming a deputy. She related her experiences attending a world medical assembly, when as a member of a group, went behind the Iron Curtain. That was the first medical group to visit there. They visited health resorts, clinics, and hospitals. She found medicine provided by the state for the people, and much health education being done, along with medical care. On the whole, medical practice was good. Cleanliness is quite definite and there is an extensive building program going on.

Dr. Church was introduced by Mrs. Ella Bruce, chairman of the health and safety committee. Other members of her committee are Blanche Benemann, co-chairman, Fannie Boyd, Maude Fanning, Charlotte Hall, Barbara Rogers, and Estelene Worral.

Holiday Fashion Gifts to Make Apron, Ascot Are Two Ideas

BY GAILE DUGAS
NEA Women's Editor

NEW YORK — (NEA) — The women who appreciate handmade gifts are legion. And fortunately, there are many women who feel that a Christmas gift that they make with their own hands carries a special holiday wish.

A really pretty apron and a chic little ascot are gifts any woman will welcome. They're easy to make, too, even if you're not much at sewing. A consultant for Burlington ribbons suggests that you use plain white broadcloth for the apron. To make the tree, cut two yards of one-inch-wide red satin ribbon into bands, the first of which is 12 inches long. Cut each successive band two inches shorter. Place them one-half-inch apart and tip each with a gold star.

The ascot requires 61 yards of red and 34 yards of white taffeta ribbon in the one-inch width. Cut the ribbon into lengths of 15 yards and join the selvage edges, alternating the color. Now, you have a band 54 inches wide and 14 yards long. Fold it at the two corners in triangular fashion. Stitch triangular folds in place. Turn up one inch at center back and tack lightly at the center to shape it slightly. Lap the fronts slightly off center for a perky effect.

Mrs. Dennis Pierson conducted the business meeting. Mrs. Estelle Maurer read the minutes and called the roll, which was a plant or bulb exchange. The program for the coming year was distributed to be filled out by the members.

The major lesson was given by Mrs. Ethel Carter and Mrs. Clarence Black, "Illinois Apples." They discussed apple production and the ten counties producing the largest number of apples.

Calhoun leads in all counties. Mrs. Carter showed a number of kinds of apples that are grown in this state. She discussed different uses for apples.

In the storing of apples they should be sound and the air should be moist and so not over a half bushel at a time. They will keep for several months if kept in this fashion. All mellow ripe apples should be kept in the refrigerator. Mrs. Black told of different ideas that are useful in the menu. Unbaked pies can be frozen if the apples are first blanched. Since apples are mild in flavor it is a wise idea not to use too much spice.

The members then had a recreation period with Mrs. Carter in charge.

The minor lesson was given by Mrs. Estelle Maurer. Her subject was "Etiquette—Home and Public." She stressed the point of understanding your family and that the little things are the most important ones, because life is made up of the small recurrent happenings. Courtesy is the consideration of other persons' feeling. It is the power which comes from knowing how to get along with people and also includes both the desire to appreciate others and to be appreciated. Social contact is informal, guided only by rules that are necessary for convenience, comfort and smoothness.

The hostesses, Mrs. Brunk and Mrs. Quintal served delicious refreshments from a fine recipe for apple pudding, along with coffee or tea and nutmeats.

Jersey County Farmers Face Drought Again
JERSEYVILLE — Jersey county farmers may find themselves hauling water again this winter unless there is rainfall in the immediate future to supplement the rapidly dwindling soil moisture.

A few farmers have been hauling water and this number may increase as water levels are falling rapidly in wells. Top soil is reported hard and dry in most localities of the county, and rainfall to be of benefit must come before the earth is frozen.

Polio Immunization Record Survey Will Provide Protection

The Morgan County Health department and School District 117 have announced plans to survey the polio immunization records of the school children of District 117. This district includes Jacksonville, North and South Jacksonville, Woodson, Murrayville, and Lynnville.

The purpose of the survey is to ascertain what polio immunizations need be given to assure that every school child will be properly protected against polio before next summer's polio season.

The cooperation of parents in recording their children's polio immunizations on a form sent home with each child on or before November 17 will be vital to the program. The forms will be processed and immunization by the Health department will begin December 1 in the schools.

Parents are urged to consult their family physician now for continuing or beginning the scheduled immunizations as the school immunization program will not affect the children who wish to have their family physician carry out their immunizations. However, the survey forms are needed for the school health record whether a physician or the Health department is to do the immunizing.

The exact dates of previous immunizations are important because protection against polio is built up by the body in accordance with the time elapsing between injections, the Health department pointed out. If the injections are too close together or too far apart the body will not respond in a way which will build up immunity properly.

The first and second doses should be at least one month apart but not longer than two months apart. The third dose should be given from five months to one year after the second. A fourth, or booster, dose is recommended every two years for school children. If the proper time intervals are not followed, no harm will come to the child but neither will the necessary protection result.

The program starting this month will enable all the children of District 117 to be fully protected before next summer's polio season.

Duke Of Edinburgh Agrees Pidgin English Is Useful

LONDON (AP) — Fella belong Mrs. Queen, he say pidgin English is still a useful means of communication.

The British Colonial Office couldn't agree more. In places like the Solomon Islands, which have several dozen different languages, everybody understands pidgin.

The administrative officers in local districts accordingly translate orders from London into pidgin so the natives can understand what is wanted of them.

The fella belong Mrs. Queen, is of course, her husband, the Duke of Edinburgh. He was so described by natives he met on his Pacific tour two years ago. Recalling this in a speech to the English-speaking union, he called pidgin a splendid language.

Its origins, however, are far from splendid.

Pidgin was developed by English traders of the 17th century as a means of talking business with the coastal Chinese. "Pidgin" itself is believed to be a Chinese corruption of "business." The traders were mostly uneducated men who held the British view that a foreigner can understand English if you only shout it loudly enough at him.

The crews of the trading ships were illiterate slum types. They made extensive contributions to pidgin.

"As a result," says the Encyclopedia Britannica, "it is an unruly, bastard jargon, filled with nursery imbecilities, vulgarisms and corruptions."

Nevertheless it is spoken by millions of natives.

Pidgin is easy to learn. U. S. soldiers in the Southwest Pacific were supplied with a pidgin handbook. One example:

"Yufela yu stand fast. Yu no can walkabout. Suppose yufela walkabout ne killim yu long musket."

As any fool can plainly see, that means "Don't move or I'll shoot."

Noise does little for the nerves. Homes with children especially need some form of soundproofing to cushion the daily racket. In heavy-traffic rooms, rubber tiled floors help cut noise as does acoustical tile. Also, draperies will cut indoor sounds and keep out street noises.

Women who like to decorate with flowers soon become adept at unusual arrangements, and turn up uses for materials for which they weren't designed. One such is to tuck stems into foam plastic. It makes a good base for dried floral arrangements.

Trips to the country during autumn and early winter pay off in decorative items for year-round use. Collect dry pine cones, oak leaves and other natural items. Then shellac them and store for holiday decorating.

If shallots are available in your market, try adding a small one (minced) to a green salad.

South Side Circle In Pilgrim Room For Program

Mrs. George Fiehr and Mrs. E. S. Hutson entertained the South Side circle in Hamilton's Pilgrim Room on November 7. Guests present were Mrs. Jack Cole, Mrs. Carl Keehn, Miss Beatrice Robertson and Mrs. Louise Kelley.

The meeting was opened by the president, Mrs. E. A. Schoedack with the reading of the minutes of the secretary.

Announcement was made that the hostess for the next meeting will be Mrs. Ethel Strawn, with Mrs. Edwin Slaughter as program leader.

Mrs. Strawn, on the program committee, presented Mrs. Lena Kerns, who addressed the club on the subject, "The Way Our People Lived." The speaker dealt with the customs and manner of living in the colonial period of our country. Although the early settlers endured many hardships, yet from them came men of great integrity and depth of character, who became some of our outstanding statesmen.

At the next meeting, Mrs. Ethel Strawn will be hostess, with Mrs. Edwin Slaughter as program leader.

Roll call was answered by the members naming a custom of olden times.

A delightful social hour was enjoyed with refreshments being served.

Ever stuff tomatoes with chopped ham salad? Good! And so is egg salad used the same way.

When Clouds Loom On The Horizon-Dr. van Straten's Lampblack May Gentle Storms

BY ALICIA HART
NEA Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—If you usually open a conversation by discussing the weather, you'll probably always have something interesting to say as long as an attractive woman scientist holds her job in the Pentagon.

Dr. Florence W. van Straten, one of the Navy's top meteorologists, has devised a weather control technique that may help eliminate hurricanes, tornadoes, hail storms and blinding fog. In fact, it may even prove successful in manufacturing rain.

The scientist's system calls for dropping carbon black, a substance found in printer's ink and automobile tires, into dangerous storm-producing clouds. Carbon black, which easily absorbs the sun's heat, warms and eventually evaporates tiny drops of water in that part of the cloud where it is planted. Clouds are actually masses of small liquid particles.

When the warmer droplets evaporate, their vapor automatically attaches itself to the colder ones and condenses. These particles finally become so heavy that they can no longer float in the air. Thus, a cloud, which might have helped produce a shattering, death dealing wind storm is broken up and simply turned into rain.

Dr. van Straten emphasizes, however, that it's too early to praise her technique as a fool-proof weather control system since it is still in the experimental stage.

She is especially reluctant to make definite predictions about guaranteeing rain for drought-stricken areas. Although initial tests proved carbon black to be an effective cloud buster, Dr. van Straten explains that there is no proof that the released water evaporated.

Since the recent announcement of her weather control technique, she has been flooded with mail from Texas asking about its rain-making potential. Other letters bemoan California postmarks have been mainly concerned with carbon black's ability to break up fog and smog.

Dr. van Straten became interested in weather work during World War II. In 1942, she left her chemistry teaching job at New York University and joined the Navy.

"I got patriotic," she explains. "And since the Navy needed chemists at the time, I got a commission."

Dr. Florence W. van Straten

It wasn't long until the Navy decided that it needed more meteorologists. So orders went out to find the 25 WAVES that had the most scientific training.

"The result was that I found myself," she explains, "with a set of orders to attend Massachusetts Institute of Technology."

At the end of the war, Navy brass persuaded Dr. van Straten to continue her work with them as a civilian. She holds the rank of commander in the Naval Reserve.

The time Dr. van Straten doesn't use in planning and conducting weather experiments, she spends training a Weimaraner puppy named Jester. He's five months old and already weighs 50 pounds," she says. "Training him takes practically all my time after I come home from the office."

Another of her favorite hobbies is to visit exotic restaurants, order the fancy dishes, and then try to duplicate them in her own kitchen.

Dr. van Straten was born in Darien, Conn., and studied at New York University.

Safety's First When Baby's About

BY KAY SHERWOOD
NEA Staff Writer

When the baby is freed from the confines of the playpen and allowed to explore, a mother's watchfulness must increase. The frightening fact that accidents are the chief cause of death in children from 1 to 16 years of age is reason enough to make every effort to protect a child.

Creeping babies and, later, the toddlers, seem especially prone to accidental injury because of their adventurousness and their inability to determine what is safe or what is dangerous.

The kitchen is one place where he'll spend a lot of time, and this is a good spot to check for hazards, first. A point to remember, too, is that each child is different.

One child may be calm, quick to obey and not given to poking fingers into every corner, while his younger sister may be just the opposite. The experience with one child doesn't necessarily apply to the next.

CHECK CONTENTS of floor cabinets, Pans and pans, he'll love to bang and play with. But the cabinet under the sink often contains substances which could be dangerous if he samples a taste.

Move detergents, cleaning agents, polishes and waxes out of reach. If you must rearrange storage to put supplies or utensils you don't want baby meddling with in the base cabinets, seal them shut with masking tape.

Masking tape can also be used to seal exposed electrical outlets and to tape loose cords tight to the wall until more permanent arrangements can be made.

Don't keep laundry supplies on the floor near the machine. Install a shelf over the washer to take the soaps and bleaches.

If you use the giant size boxes of detergents for economy's sake, transfer a week's supply at a time into a canister which can be kept on the shelf and put the big container in the basement or garage.

For safety's sake, do get into the habit of always turning out handles away from the edge of the stove. If other members of the family cook, make sure they follow this basic safety step. Make sure appliance cords are out of reach and that sharp knives and scissors are stored away from regular utensils.

Stairways to basement or upper floors should be guarded by locked doors or gates. If your kitchen has an old-fashioned radiator, rearrange furniture to cut off a toddler's access to it.

MEDICINES are usually kept in the bathroom medicine cabinet, locked up or unreachably one hopes. But certain medicines may be housed in the kitchen and those should be as carefully shelved as the others.

Don't leave any medicine around tables or counters. Put it in the refrigerator or on a top shelf.

Incidentally, some of the new containers for children's aspirin, both in tablet and liquid form, are sealed with "safety" caps. They're hard to open, but are not completely foolproof.

A good practice is to check the house, particularly the kitchen, thoroughly once each week for hazards which may be present.

For example, a weekend of activity may turn up insecticides, paints, paint thinners, calking compounds and such items that don't belong in the kitchen.

Those should be restored to their proper place, out of sight, in the basement workroom or garage.

Carrollton Siren Can Be Heard In 7 Mile Radius

CARROLLTON — The Carrollton Fire Protection District's new ten horse power fire siren is in the process of installation on the tower which is now located at the rear of the Carrollton City Hall, having been moved there recently from the rear of the city library.

The bell which formerly hung in the tower and rang as a fire alarm will be installed on the tower again and will be used as an auxiliary fire alarm.

The new siren will be heard for a radius of approximately seven miles and will be tested as soon as the installation is completed.

This program is just in its infancy in Greene county.

Fur Makes Comeback In Male Fashions

This set of coats demonstrates how comfort can go with good looks. Bulky, but lightweight, the one at left is of kidskin with a two-inch thick dyneel lining. BY DICK KLEINER
NEA Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Next time your wife or girl friend, as the case may be hints that she'd like a mink coat, you hint right back at her—you could use a new fur coat, yourself.

Fur for men? It may be coming. There are quite a few real and fake fur coats on the market for this winter. Some are all fur, some only lined or collared with fur. Some are in short-lengths, some in the windbreaker models.

Most of the all-fur coats are the old-fashioned beaver or raccoon type. Borg's Rahn-oon is a fake fur that looks like the real thing but, of course, costs considerably less. And these fakes are lighter and moth-proof.

A new fur for coats—a real one—is Southwest African Persian lamb, which generally has been dyed black for women's coats. But it can, and is, available in men's garments in browns and grays as well as black. Manufacturers are using Southwest African Persian lamb in many ways—full coats, linings, collars, even a fancy waistcoat dotted with solid gold buttons.

This development is undoubtedly an outgrowth of the popularity of pile coats and pile-lined coats, which has been steadily increasing. More and more coats—particularly suburban coats—will have the pile linings and pile shawl collars.

Men apparently like the softness of pile and its warmth, so the chances are good the real and fake furs will find a market, too.

Creating a stir in the formal wear field is After Six' new "707" dinner jacket. This was named after a new jet plane and the idea is that the jacket is about as streamlined and "jetish" as the men's stylists can dream up.

It has the sleek continental lapel with a shawl collar that angles in at the base. The pockets are huckling pockets—slanted—and have a half-inch satin trim. Satin cuffs, detachable—and satin trim on the breast pocket give it a very fast-flying appearance. All you need is a reciprocating girl friend and you can fly, man.

Something has at last done something about rubber boots. Ordinarily, when the snows are deep you put on a pair of rubber boots and get a hot foot built in. They're so air-free that your feet feel like they're walking independently across the Sahara.

The Tingley Rubber Corp. using Du Pont synthetic rubber, has devised a boot it likes to call "air-conditioned." The device works so that, with every step, air is virtually pumped into the boot and keeps the feet well ventilated. It operates something like a bellows.

It may make winters a little bit more bearable.

Miss Grace McFarland Weds Stanley Canatsey

An impressive wedding ceremony performed at 4 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 1 in the chapel of the Central Christian church united in marriage Miss Grace McFarland and Stanley Canatsey.

Rev. Gerald Miller officiated at the double ring ceremony performed in the presence of the immediate families.

The bride chose for her wedding a two piece navy blue knit suit, accented with a French blue hat and matching accessories. Her corsage consisted of a red throatie white orchid.

Mrs. Canatsey served as the bride's only attendant. She wore a dusty rose knit suit with brown accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

The groom and his best man, Granville Evans, wore dark suits and white carnation boutonnieres.

The bride's mother was attired in a two piece blue silk suit with a pink feathered hat and matching accessories.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert McFarland, Sr., of rural route two, Jacksonville.

Following the wedding the bride's parents entertained at a buffet dinner at their home west of the city for members of the wedding party.

The dining room table was attractively decorated with a centerpiece of pink carnations and white cluster mums. The bride and groom cut a two layer wedding cake beautifully decorated with pink and white roses topped with three large white wedding bells.

Assisting with serving were the bride's sister, Mrs. Maurice Cooper and her sister-in-law, Mrs. Albert McFarland, Jr.

Following a short trip the newlyweds are making their home at 1509 Hardin Avenue.

Green cabbage, shredded papery, thin and mixed with well-seasoned mayonnaise, makes delicious and nutritious sandwiches to serve with a platter of cold meats.

CHICAGO (AP)—Butcher hog prices climbed on four of the five trading days this week but one steep setback on Thursday which ran to as much as $1 a hundred-weight virtually wiped out the gains.

The decline occurred on a day when the supply totaled 14,000 head, the second day within two weeks it had been that heavy. That same day one local packing plant was shut down because of labor trouble.

The four-day receipts at Chicago also were the largest since January and for the 12 major markets they were the largest of the year. However, barrows and gilts were steady to 25 cents higher at the end of the week with sows steady to 25 lower.

The slaughter steer supply was about 6 per cent larger than last week but included a smaller percentage of prime grade. About 70 per cent of the offerings were in the popular choice grade with most of the others grading good.

All classes were steady to higher for the week with slaughter steers and heifers advancing as much as 25 cents.

Supplies on the sheep market were largest since February and prices were under almost constant pressure after Monday. With about 95 per cent of the offerings slaughter lambs, this class closed weak to 50 cents lower on wooled kinds and as much as $1.50 lower for shorn.

New York Stock Market

By ED MORSE
AP Business News Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market rushed to new record peaks this week as Democratic election victories spurred hopes of bigger government spending.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks rose $3.70 to $202.40 for its largest weekly rise since the week ended July 26.

The week's advance was the second straight since the minor correction of three weeks ago and was the 11th upturn in the past 12 weeks.

Democratic gains in Tuesday's election were anticipated by Wall Street as well as by most political observers so the voting trend was no surprise. The extent of the sweep, however, apparently was not looked for. The day after election saw one of the biggest daily stock market jumps of the year.

Stocks rose moderately on the day before election although a degree of uncertainty was apparent, ascribed to hesitancy regarding the actual results of the election. Small as the Monday rise was, it sufficed to nudge the AP average to a record high. The Wednesday advance was, of course, another record peak. A vigorous upsurge on Thursday put the AP average at its latest all-time high, $202.70.

By Thursday's final hour, however, there was vicious profit taking. If not for the late selling pressure, the Thursday advance would have ranked among the greatest in Wall Street history.

Friday saw some additional profit taking as well as considerable switching and cross currents which dropped the averages for a minor loss. It was regarded as normal consolidation in view of the breath-taking pace of the advance.

Corporate and government bonds each closed slightly higher for the week. Trading declined to $29.1 million par value on the Big Board from $31.816,000 the previous week.

ESTIMATED RECEIPTS
CHICAGO (AP)—Estimated receipts for Monday are: 100 head, 12,000 hogs and 3,000 sheep.

Since football began at the University of Alabama in 1892 the Crimson Tide has had seven undefeated seasons. Two came in succession in 1925 and 1926.

GRAIN FUTURES CLOSE WEEK WITH GOOD SOLID GAINS

By GIL MAYO
AP Business News Writer
CHICAGO (AP)—For the first time in more than a month, the grain futures market came to the end of a week with good solid gains for almost every contract in the list.

There was not a single loser on the Board of Trade but one contract remained unchanged and a few, notably in oats, moved ahead only by fractions of a cent.

Except for occasional backlashes of profit taking, prices moved steadily upward. The most bullish factor was Tuesday's sweeping election victory.

Some brokers said the market strength Monday was related to the prospects of a Democratic victory but the party's gains were far more than had been expected and the advance was resumed on Wednesday.

By that time, however, the margins of gain were much too inviting for profit takers to ignore and they had their inning without discouraging the long-term investors very greatly.

Although it was not clear what, if anything, the new Congress may do about the farm program, there was a feeling of certainty that it would do something and that whatever it does will be a reversal of policies advocated by Secretary of Agriculture Benson.

There was a general belief that agricultural reform will be high on the agenda of the lawmakers and that it will be toward liberalizing the present program.

At the end of the week, wheat was 1 1/4-1 1/2 cents a bushel higher than a week ago, December 19.40-19.45, corn 1 1/2-2 1/2 cents higher, December 12.15-12.20, oats 1/2-1 1/2 higher, December 6 1/2-6 3/4, rye unchanged to 3 1/4 higher, December 11.30-11.35, soybeans 2 1/2-3 1/4 higher, November 12.13 1/2-14.

Wheat futures saw a par value of $29.45-46.00 last week compared with $31.816,000 the previous week and $21, 595,700 in the same 1957 week.

Wall Street saw in the Democratic victory a go-ahead for stepped up federal spending with inflationary overtones. The stock market reacted with a massive buying surge that sent the averages into new high ground.

Looking ahead, many businessmen expected the big Democratic majorities in the new Congress to push hard for increased federal spending on education, housing, food control, farm subsidies and the like. Other likely objectives: an increase in the legal minimum wage now pegged at $1, legislation favorable to labor unions, tax cuts for individuals but not for corporations and a "get tough" policy toward Big Business.

The inflationary implications of the Democratic landslide touched off verbal fireworks that seemed destined to grow in intensity after the new Congress convenes next year. At his press conference, President Eisenhower called into what he called the "liberal wing" of the Democratic party, denouncing its adherents as spenders. Said Eisenhower: "I am going to fight this as hard as I know."

Briefly over the business scene: There's a run on women's notions. The National Assn. of Hosiery Manufacturers reports that factories shipped 13,944,000 dozen pairs of nylon in the July-August-September quarter—an increase of 500,000 dozen over the like period last year.

Manny Eagle, president of the Boys' Apparel & Accessories Manufacturers Assn., says boys' wear retailers are ordering merchandise at a faster than usual pace so they'll have ample stocks on hand for Easter. Easter 1959 falls on March 29—one week earlier than this year.

Auto production jumped to more than 128,000 cars this week with Chevrolet accounting for 31,000. Directors of General Electric Corp., the nation's largest independent non-Bell telephone system, and Sylvania Electric Products Inc., have voted to merge.

The Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co., which operates the huge A. & P. food store chain, is getting ready to offer its voting stock to the general public for the first time. The voting stock is now held by heirs of the late George Huntington Hartford, the company's founder.

Where does all the nation's cotton go? Lion's share, according to the National Cotton Council, eventually finds its way into men's and boys' shirts placed second, taking 621,000 bales. Women's blouses and blouses' dresses placed a poor fourth, behind sheets, towels, drapery and upholstery fabrics, and men's and boys' underwear. The dresses consumed 327,000 bales of cotton.

Hits Parked Car On Clay Avenue; Pays $35 Fine
Russell Lee Hart, Kansas City, Kansas, sustained a slight cut on his nose when he lost control of his 1933 Kaiser while driving north on Clay Avenue at 3:50 o'clock Saturday morning.

The car driven by Hart crashed into a parked car in the 300 block of South Clay Avenue, resulting in considerable damage to both vehicles.

Police said the parked car belonged to Warren Wendell of Chicago, and was unoccupied at the time of the collision.

Hart car received damage to the right fender, one wheel, frame, radiator, grill, and windshield. The car belonging to the Chicago man had damage to the left rear fender, trunk lid, a tire, and left door.

Both automobiles were towed to the Brummett garage. A ticket was issued to Hart, charging reckless driving. Later Saturday he was fined $35 in the court of Police Magistrate Fred Daniels.

Capt. Leach, Sgt. Brune and Patrolman Jackson went to the place of the accident.

THIS WEEK IN BUSINESS

By WALTER BREEDE JR.
NEW YORK (AP)—Business got set this week for a post-election spurt that promised to keep the recovery rolling well into 1959. While economists and political analysts offered varied interpretations of the election outcome, consumers kept on spending at a whirlwind pace. Merchants confidently predicted a record high in Christmas sales.

Retailers seemed to feel that, whatever changes the Democratic sweep might spell out for business in the next two years, the election had done nothing to change the course of recovery here and now.

Scanning their order books and sales charts, some had cause for mild rejoicing. Sears, Roebuck & Co. reported October sales of 363 million dollars, up a hefty 10.3 per cent from a year ago and a record high for that month.

"Sales," commented Morton D. May, president of May Department Stores Co., "are beginning to reflect the fact that a lot of people have gone back to work."

Also aligned with the optimists was Frederic G. Donner, chairman of General Motors Corp. "Consumers, business and government as a whole are spending at a record rate," said Donner. "This spending should translate itself into rising levels of industrial activity and employment."

There's renewed feeling of confidence in the air.

Stock sales last week totaled 15,920,235 shares compared with 9,736,560 the previous week and 9,665,687 in the corresponding week a year ago.

Bond sales had a par value of $29,454,000 last week compared with $31,816,000 the previous week and $21, 595,700 in the same 1957 week.

IkInterrupts Trip To Colombo Meet To Visit Brother

State Dulles will preside. Delegates of the Asian nations attending the Colombo Plan Conference hoped for an indication in the President's speech that greater economic aid would be forthcoming for underdeveloped countries of the Far East.

Canada and England have indicated they will step up their economic assistance to hard-pressed nations. Eisenhower said this week there would be no cut in necessary U.S. foreign aid. The delegates expect his opening message will give a hint of U.S. policy in Asia.

The President was the guest of former secretary of the treasury George M. Humphrey at the Cedar Point Club on the Lake Erie shore. Shortly after arrival Friday afternoon, the President went into the marsh and came out with four mallards.

Illini Passes Whip Michigan Wolves, 21-8

End Rich Kreitling Snags Three TD Tosses For Illinois

By DAVE DILES
ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — End Rich Kreitling caught three touchdowns—two of them from 150-pound quarterback John Easterbrook—and Illinois defeated Michigan Saturday 21-8 in a Big Ten struggle finished in a driving rainstorm.

Kreitling, a 22-year-old junior from Chicago, snared three touchdowns—two of them from 150-pound quarterback John Easterbrook—and Illinois defeated Michigan Saturday 21-8 in a Big Ten struggle finished in a driving rainstorm.

Easterbrook, a 19-year-old sophomore who played his high school football in the University of Illinois' backyard at Champaign, made two beautiful passes before arching a long pass to Kreitling on the Illini 45. Kreitling had slipped behind two defenders and went the remaining 53 yards all by himself.

Just before the half, a low pass from center on fourth down forced Michigan to yield the ball at its own 17. On third down quarterback Russ Martin passed to Kreitling in the end zone.

Kreitling's third TD pass came on the first play of the second half and it was the same play that had worked for 83 yards before.

Bob Placek was Michigan's entire offense in a sloppily played contest that was regionally televised.

Operating as a quarterback when his team used T-formations and as a tailback when it switched to the single wing, Placek sparked every Michigan move. The Wolverines finished off only one scoring drive and muffed three other opportunities right at the Illinois goal.

After Kreitling opened the scoring with his 83-yard punt, Placek almost single handedly moved Michigan 73 yards to pay dirt.

With less than a minute left in the half, a low pass from center as Michigan lined up to kick gave Illinois the ball at the Wolverine 17. There were only 38 seconds left when Kreitling leaped high and pulled down Martin's pass for the go-ahead touchdown.

Illinois took the third period kickoff and on the first play from scrimmage Kreitling raced behind the same two Michigan halfbacks, caught Easterbrook's pass at the Wolverine 30 and sped into the end zone.

Illinois' victory was its seventh in the last nine meetings between these two old rivals.

Michigan had 20 first downs to nine for Illinois and outstripped the Illini in nearly every department.

The difference was Kreitling, who leads the Big Ten in yards gained by passing.

Cadets Turn Back Rice, 14-7, With 52 Seconds Left

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Army struck on a 64-yard touchdown pass from quarterback Joe Caldwell to halfback Pete Dawkins with only 52 seconds left Saturday and the mighty Cadets turned back the amazing Rice Owls 14-7.

Seconds before the perfectly executed tie-breaking toss, Don Bonko, reserve Cadet fullback, had crashed through to block a Rice field goal attempt after the Owls had moved to the Army nine.

Army, a seven-point favorite, had carried a 5-0-1 record and a No. 3 ranking to Houston on its first invasion of the Southwest.

Until the closing minutes, neither team had moved inside the 20-yard lines except for a quick exchange of touchdowns in the second period.

Rice took a 7-0 lead on a 58-yard drive that was climaxed by a 27-yard touchdown pass from Alvin Hartman, a sophomore quarterback, to end Buddy Dial.

Army struck right back for 70 yards and a touchdown that came on an eight-yard pass from halfback Bob Anderson to end Bill Carpenter.

Operating as a quarterback when his team used T-formations and as a tailback when it switched to the single wing, Placek sparked every Michigan move. The Wolverines finished off only one scoring drive and muffed three other opportunities right at the Illinois goal.

Downstate Prep Notes

By JOHN CAMPBELL

Kankakee's Ninth Annual Christmas Tournament will be held December 26-27-28 and the fine tournament has produced one state champion, a third place winner and six other state tournament finalists.

Earl Jones, athletic director, asked the board of education for authority to promote a holiday tourney after the new gym was built in 1950 and permission was granted. The Kankakee high tourney is recognized as one of the outstanding meets in the state, offering a cross-section of the best teams in Illinois high schools.

The 1950 tourney, the first, was won by South Shore of Chicago, led by Lee O'Connell who went to star at Bradley University. Probably the most colorful and popular of all the 60 teams that have appeared in the Annual Kankakee holiday tourney was little Hobart, champion in 1951, a Cinderella team which the following March became the only district tournament winner to win the coveted state title. Its stars were the Judson twins, Paul and Phil, who later starred at the University of Illinois. (Paul is the basketball coach this season at Mattoon high.)

Coach Gay Kintner of Decatur high (Stephen) has the honor of being the only active coach to ever win three state championships. He is the oldest coach in point of service, 32nd season at Decatur high and his Reds won championships in 1931-1932 and 1945. Coach Kintner is one of the few mentors to have a gymnasium named after him while he is still directing a team.

Glenn Holmes of Freeport played on the state championship team in 1915 and coached Freeport high to the state title in 1926. He is the only winner of state basketball championship team to be a member of a state title winner and for the same high school.

Coach Bob Carpenter of Peitshans (Springfield) has arranged a tough 20 game chart and the Springfield city tourney, Paris, Northwestern (Palmyra), Tri-City (Buffalo) and Williamsville are the new teams on the Flyers' schedule replacing Pana, Lincoln, Jerseyville and Havana. The big loss by graduation at Peitshans were Bob Volk and Milford Webster. Coach Elmo Hildebrandt's Peitshans five will open the Flyers' season on Dec. 2 at Springfield.

Pekin's Chinks under Coach Bob Cain for the third season have four new teams on the 1958-59 chart including Eisenhower (Decatur), Richwoods (Peoria), Lanier (Springfield) and Moline replacing Bloomington, Springfield, Danville, Streator, Decatur, Urbana and Champaign. Coach Harold Bowen's Farmington Farmers will face a new team in Corpus Christi (Galesburg) replacing Dunlap on the chart. DePue was the new team on the 1957 schedule while Richwoods was added last season. Farmington's Third Annual Holiday tourney will be held Dec. 29-30 with Kewanee, Peoria, Spalding and Abingdon participating with the host five.

Roodhouse and White Hall meet Tuesday afternoon at White Hall's new football field in the game of the year for both squads. Roodhouse has nailed down at least a share of the 1958 Illinois football championship and White Hall can tie with a win over their arch rival. Carrollton could slip in for a share of the title with a win over Greenfield if Roodhouse is defeated. The mayors of Roodhouse and White Hall are always on hand for this important game and each works on the sidelines running the first down marker and chain for the officials. On several occasions the loser has to tie the winner to the other city in a wheel barrow.

The youth was hurt while playing with the Western Illinois University "B" team against the Northeast Missouri State Teachers College "B" team.

NORTHWESTERN HIGH'S STANDOUTS

Dave Arnold and Chester Arnold, co-captains of the Northwestern Wildcats, played vital roles in the success of the team. The Wildcats won four, lost two and played a pair of tie contests.

Dave (above), the 180 pound senior left guard was chosen the most valuable player by his teammates. Chester (right), a 200 pound center, rated a first team berth on 1957's MSM Conference selections.

Both Chester and Dave, who aren't brothers, are sure to receive some attention when the MSM selects an all-conference team this year. Dave was the team's leading tackler in seven of Northwestern's eight outings.

Atlanta Oper. Players Take Day Off For Football

By JIM KLOBUCHAR

ATLANTA (AP) — The Atlanta Open Golf Tournament was at a standstill Saturday while most of the players deserted the links to attend the Clemson-Georgia Tech football game.

The 72-hole, $25,000 event was started a day earlier than usual to permit the off-day and still hold the final round Sunday.

Two 39-year-old USGA Open champions — Julius Boros and Tommy Bolt — probably will draw the major galleries when play resumes. Boros, from Mid Pines, N.C., took the lead after three rounds with 74-66-70-219. Boros won the National Open in 1952.

Bolt, the current Open champion who registers from Paradise, Fla., shot a 65 after pair of 74s in the first two rounds. His 213 total was good for a tie for fifth.

Between Boros and Bolt are three younger stars deadlocked at 212. They are Bill Casper of Apple Valley, Calif.; Ernie Vossler of Midland, Tex.; and Bob Watson of Ardley-on-Hudson, N.Y.

Par for the 7,004-yard Cherokee Country Club course is 36-36-72.

Fleming's two-touchdown shots were near duplicates of his 61 and 73-yard scoring dashes which helped defeat Michigan a week ago.

Late in the first period he slipped through a small opening at left tackle, burst away from a line backer and boomed down the sidelines to score from the 46.

Fleming hit the same hole midway through the second quarter, got a one-step lead on the Gopher corner line backer and outraced everyone into the end zone.

Duncan, the Hawkeyes' All-American quarterback candidate, fired an 11-yard scoring pass to Bob Prescott later in the quarter and then hit Don Norton from the 10 in the fourth quarter.

Minnesota got its lone touchdown in the third period when second string quarterback Larry Johnson connected with halfback Bill Kauth on a 30-yard pass.

Minnesota's all-sophomore backfield didn't have the speed or finesse to bother seriously the tough Hawkeye line.

With Fleming, Bob Jeter, Ray Jauch and Kevin Furlong tearing the Gopher line and Duncan passing.

Unbeaten Iowa Routs Gophers, 28-6, To Bag Big 10 Championship

By JIM KLOBUCHAR

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Unbeaten Iowa won the Big Ten football championship and a trip to the Rose Bowl Saturday by hammering winless Minnesota 28-6 behind Willie Fleming's two spectacular scoring sprints.

Fleming sped 63 to 46 yards in the first half to propel the nation's second-ranked football power to its sixth victory and fifth in the Big Ten. The Hawks' lone blemish is a 13-13 tie with Air Force.

Iowa's victory, linked with the Ohio State-Purdue tie and Wisconsin's triumph over Northwestern, mathematically clinched the Hawkeyes' fifth Big Ten championship and their second in three years.

Fleming, a sophomore and 10-second speedster, combined with quarterback Randy Duncan to deliver the big offensive salvos that dealt Minnesota its 10th straight defeat.

Crimsons Smother Cyclones For Unbeaten Campaign

Harry Grayson's SCOREBOARD

By HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Sports Editor

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Frank Leahy, his face full and the worry lines of his coaching days gone, stepped out of the cab at LaGuardia Airport, handed the hackie the type of tip big business men are supposed to, and began walking to catch a plane for Boston.

Which was as good a reason to talk to him as any. The football winds have been filled with rumors all fall that Leahy, the master mechanic, has been making a pass or two at the Boston College job.

Last year, you'll recall, the man who was practically unbeatable at Notre Dame appeared on the Texas A. and M. campus and was signed and sealed for the Aggie job until his doctors put him in the broadcasting booth again.

"We might as well settle Boston College right now," Leahy began. "I am telling you this sincerely. I am never going to coach again."

"I'm going to Boston to see Billy Sullivan. He has always been associated with me. I am not going to see anybody from Boston College."

It has been six years since Leahy left Notre Dame after putting together a matchless record.

Now he is in lucrative insurance and oil holdings out of Denver, where he is to make his home at the turn of the year. And he also broadcasts college games each Saturday.

This is not to say he is unable to speak about today's football. Leahy not only can speak . . . he does. This is something of a revelation to those who knew him as a seemingly saddened non-committal man at Notre Dame.

During a short walk across an airport lobby, you got in rapid-fire the following Leahy views:

ARMY'S LONELY END OFFENSE: "It's fine because it gives a twist to the game, which is good for its popularity. But, my word, that end is such a big young man. I never would keep him out there the entire game, unless my opponents put two men covering him. That end should be in there doing some blocking. I certainly would not bother to use that lonely end for an entire game. It doesn't make sense to me."

THE NOTRE DAME TEAM: "I can't account for George Igo not being used for the entire season. They said he couldn't tackle? Now who told you that? What is practice for? You can teach a lad to tackle. This lad is the finest passer, college or pro, I've ever seen. It is unthinkable that he wouldn't be used from the very start. Unless his ankle was bad, of course. But I'd rather have him on one leg than some other lad with two."

PROFESSIONAL FOOTBALL: "I went to see the pros play when I coached. I learned so many valuable things from their offenses. I haven't had a chance to attend personally this season, but I'll catch a couple of games before I'm through. You say John Unitas came to Notre Dame while I was there? And we sent him back? Oh, it happened while I was away from the campus. Oh, I see."

The only dark look of the day spread over The Master's face. Even in looking back, he does not like mistakes.

COACHING MORALS: "Yes, why is Bobby Dodd blasting other coaches for their recruiting tactics? Bobby is yelling about the very things he has done himself for years. Georgia Tech always had football players. We had to play them. We knew what they were. I think Georgia Tech must have a new president and Bobby can't get the boys in there so easily any more so he is taking it out on others. It's a shame. The coaching profession needs Bobby Dodd. I wish he wouldn't be saying such things."

Frank Leahy will freely criticize football techniques . . . but recruiting — never!

No one ever had a deeper appreciation of the horses or knew more about what to do with them.

Field Goal Provides Badgers With 17-13 Win Over Wildcats

By CHUCK CAPALDO

Associated Press Sports Writer

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Wisconsin's Badgers parlayed fumble recoveries by Jerry Stalcup and Jon Hobbs into a touchdown and a field goal during a crazy-quilt 17-point second quarter that gave them a 17-13 Big Ten football victory over Northwestern Saturday.

Hobbs' field goal from the 22, after an offside penalty against the Wildcats gave him a second chance, provided the Badgers with their winning margin before a homecoming crowd of 62,924 at rain-splattered Camp Randall Stadium.

The Wildcats, ranked fourth-peggs above Wisconsin, were their own worst enemies throughout most of the penalty-strewn game. They scored once in the third quarter after a Wisconsin fumble and again in the fourth following a pass interference penalty against the Badgers.

Northwestern's highly rated quarterback, Dick Thornton, and halfback Ron Burton each scored from one yard out. The Wildcats closed with a rush but could not overcome the Badgers' 17-point second quarter.

The going got so rough in the late stages that the Badgers' Dale Hackbart and Dick Teatek were banished from the game for protesting the pass interference call against Hackbart that set up the Wildcats' second touchdown.

Wisconsin registered its third triumph of the Big Ten campaign against one loss and one tie. The Wildcats stand 3-2-0 in the conference.

Thornton, the Big Ten's total offense leader, added 125 yards to his 567-yard total. He completed 7 of 16 passes for 83 yards and rushed 12 times for 42 yards net.

Hackbart led a statistical edge over Thornton in the battle for All America quarterback honors, with 84 yards passing and 57 rushing.

Tom Wiesner's one-yard plunge midway through the pivotal second period was the only score manufactured without any help from the invaders. It gave them a 7-0 edge.

A few minutes later, Stalcup, a guard, pounced on halfback Sam Johnson's fumble on a 17-point second quarter that gave them a 17-13 Big Ten football victory over Northwestern Saturday.

SEASON-END GRAIN STOCKS REACH NEW HIGHS
Carryover stocks of sorghum grain, corn and soybeans were at new record highs at the end of the 1937-38 marketing year. Price support programs were the principal cause of the large accumulations of corn and sorghum grain. These accumulations may be good or not, depending on their size in relation to national needs.
Sorghum grain. The carryover of sorghum grain on Oct. 1 was estimated at 309 million bushels. This amount is nearly four times the previous record set in 1936 and equaled in 1937. It is 69 per cent of total 1937 production.
The 1938 crop was estimated in October at 607 million bushels, eight per cent above last year's record, Texas, Kansas and Nebraska are the leading producers. Price support loans are available at $1.83 a hundred pounds. The crop is drier than it was last year, so the price support program may be more effective.
Corn. Carryover of corn on Oct. 1 was estimated at 1,467 million bushels. This amount is only three per cent more than the previous record set a year ago, but equals 41 per cent of the 1937 crop. Before price supports a normal carryover was about 10 per cent of the previous year's crop.
The 1938 crop was estimated in October at 3,896 million bushels, which is eight per cent more than last year, but only two per cent more than the previous record crop harvested 10 years ago.
The national average price support loan rate for non-compliance corn is $1.06 a bushel. Harvest time sales seem likely to hold prices 10 to 15 cents below the loan level for a few weeks.
Soybeans. The carryover of old soybeans on Oct. 1 was estimated at only 21 million bushels. Although this is about twice the largest previous record carryover, it is only four per cent of the 1937 crop.
The Jacksonville Kiwanis club will observe National Farm-City Week with a special program to be held at the regular luncheon meeting at the Dunlap hotel on Thursday, Nov. 20.
H. W. Hannah, assistant dean of the U. I. College of Agriculture and professor of farm law, will be the speaker. He will talk on "Agriculture in India" telling of his experiences in that land while serving in an advisory capacity under Point 4.
Charles Nicholson is in charge of arrangements. The Kiwanis will have farmer friends as guests.

Delegates To I.A.A. Convention To Tackle Today's Farm Problems
Several important matters indicate the 44th annual meeting of the Illinois Agricultural Association will be one of the busiest in years. About 500 voting delegates from each of the 99 country Farm Bureaus gather in Chicago Nov. 17-20 at Hotel Sherman.
At least 5,000 persons are expected to attend this year's four-day convention, hear reports on progress of the IAA's affiliated companies and discuss other subjects of concern to agriculture at general sessions.
Morgan county's delegates will be President Roy Nickel of Concord, Bernard Camm and LeRoy Smith of Franklin, Lloyd Stephens of Pleasant Plains and James Swain, rural route 3.
Alternates are Ralph Ginder, rural route 1; Gary Strang, Murfreesboro; Donald Richardson, rural route 1; and James Johnson, Waverly.
John Chambers, organization director of the Morgan County Farm Bureau, will attend, along with Farm Adviser George Trull and Assistant Farm Adviser Bob Hayward, Jr.
The insurance department will be represented by Charles W. Nicholson, Virgil Gibbs, Sam Anderson, Neal Cooper and Dave Sidwell.
Representing the Morgan County Service company will be Albert Nienhiser, Frank Flynn, J. D. Bunting, Ed Ebersol and Alfred Enke, all of Jacksonville, and Chester A. Thomason.
A. Paul Johnson of Ashland, a member of the Illinois Locker association, will also attend.
Serum Company
Everett Reynolds of Jacksonville will preside at all sessions of the Illinois Serum company. He is president of the cooperative.
Re-districting of the state and the election of new IAA directors becomes effective at this year's annual meeting. Nominating causes are scheduled for Monday afternoon.
The new set-up will bring about several changes.
Boyce Moore of Jacksonville is the director from the old 20th district and Howard Lanterman of Chatham is the director from the old 21st district. Sections of these two districts, including Morgan county and Sangamon county, will be in the new Section 10.
Moore and Lanterman, friends, have each indicated they will accept the directorship of the new district. Neither, however, are making any direct campaign for the new job and their mutual friends may decide to elect a new director from the new district.
Delegates will also consider policy resolutions—always one of the major responsibilities at the annual meeting. Deliberations begin Wednesday and continue Thursday when final action is expected.
Status of the IAA building program may come up for discussion if delegates desire to hear a report on this important project. The IAA board in early October followed the directive of the delegates and chose a downtown community for the new office location. Bloomington is the choice.
Memorial Service
In one of the convention's highlights, farm people will pause to pay tribute to Otto Steffey, IAA president from 1934 until May 15, 1938, when he died unexpectedly of a heart attack.
Steffey, a grain and livestock farmer from Stronghurst, served as a county Farm Bureau director, an IAA director and IAA vice president and president for 32 years. The half-hour program will include tributes from William J. Kuhfuss, present IAA president; Earl C. Smith, IAA president from 1926 to 1945; Charles B. Shuman, IAA president from 1945 to 1954; and Russell McKee, good friend and longtime director associate who will give the opening prayer.
Rev. Charles H. Willey, pastor of the First Christian Church, Moline, will give a brief inspirational talk, "Ye Shall Live Also." Rev. Willey is well-known throughout western Illinois for his inspiration.

High Priced Commodities Hard To Sell Everywhere
URBANA — A University of Illinois agricultural economist points out that other countries besides the United States have faced problems in pricing and marketing their farm products.
H.C.M. Case said the same two principal lessons show up in the farm price programs of foreign countries as in our own. Price supports or subsidies help increase production and help meet domestic needs. But for products normally exported, price supports are usually raised so high that they encourage competition from other countries.
Case cited the experience of Finland that produces about one fourth of their sugar supply by paying their producers $1 for sugar beets that produce only 60 cents worth of sugar. The government makes up the loss by taking a profit on the sugar they import from other countries. He also reported several European countries are subsidizing production of oil crops. Sometimes they set the price too high and get more oil seeds than they wanted.
Another French Problem
Case reported that we would probably hear more about French farm policies if they didn't have greater political problems. The French have been using public tax money to hold wheat prices above the world market. As a result the French people are paying higher taxes to maintain wheat exports and adding to the high cost of food at the same time.

When Brazil tried to create higher prices for coffee by destroying part of their crop, they were able to keep prices up only until about 12 other Central and South American countries could plant coffee trees and get them into production.
When Argentina tried to set farm product prices at a high price during World War II, Uruguay began to produce their own.
The Cotton Story
But price support programs in our own country have also given foreign countries new opportunities. Case pointed out. Forty years ago the United States exported over 70 percent of the cotton used in Great Britain and European countries and 45 percent used by all foreign countries. Today, we furnish less than 30 percent of the cotton used in Great Britain and Europe and less than 20 percent used in all foreign countries. Price supports in this country have made cotton production attractive to foreign countries and we have lost a sizeable market for cotton.
In all these international trade situations where prices are supported at high levels, a country loses export sales until its prices are reduced to meet this competition, Case emphasized.

Scott Farm Tour To Study Easy Feed Handling
Automatic feed handling and concrete finishing floors for hogs will be the two principal topics of discussion at the annual field tour sponsored jointly by the Extension service and the Farm Bureau Farm Management service, announced Dale Hewitt, Scott county farm adviser.
The meeting will be held Tuesday, Nov. 11, on the Dan Liles farm, which is located five miles north of the junction of Routes 36-100, or four miles south of Bluffs. It will begin at 1 p.m.
Liles has a mix-mill to grind and blend feed automatically. He uses steel bins with perforated bottoms for grain drying and storage.
He will also discuss the advantages and disadvantages of finishing hogs on concrete floors. The discussion will include floor construction, size and shape, arrangement of feeders and waterers and the manure disposal system he is using.
Assisting in the presentation of the program will be Denver Kunz, FBPM fieldman; Karl Longenbach, FBPM power use adviser, and Farm Adviser Hewitt.
All interested persons are invited to attend.

Labor Saving Devices To Be Main Interest In Morgan-Scott Tour
Farmers of Morgan and Scott counties are invited to attend a farm tour featuring labor saving operations and equipment, it was announced last week by George Trull and Dale Hewitt, farm advisers of the two counties. It will be held Tuesday, Nov. 25.
Two farms in Morgan county and one farm in Scott county will be visited. The farms will be visited in the morning, with the first stop scheduled for 9 a.m. at the Dick Lizenby Farm in Scott county.
Lunch will be served at noon at St. Paul's Lutheran church and will be followed by an afternoon program at the church.
The tour schedule will be:
9 a.m.—Dick Lizenby Farm — Scott county; 2 miles west of Merritt. Features of this farm are pig-lots, heat lamps, electric water heaters, and concrete feed areas.
9:45 a.m.—W. A. Martin Farm — Morgan county; 4 mile west of Concord. New central farrowing house with farrowing stalls. Electric heat cables in floor. Automatic feed grinder-blender, over-head grain bins.
10:45 a.m.—Arlo Schumacher Farm—Morgan county; 2 miles northwest of Chapin—1 mile north of St. Paul's Lutheran church. This is a hog farm. 1500 hogs are produced a year. Large central farrowing house with farrowing pens. Pressurized hot water heating. Automatic feed handling system — auger unloading wagon. Concrete feeding floors. Soaked corn feeders.
Noon—Free lunch at St. Paul's Lutheran church.
Afternoon Program
1 p.m.—"Efficiency in Livestock and Feed Handling"—Frank Andrews, Extension specialist in agricultural engineering.
"Today's Farm Electrified"—Karl Longenbach, power use adviser, Illinois Rural Electric Company.
Discussion period.
The tour is sponsored by the Extension services of Morgan and Scott counties with the cooperation of many of the local feed dealers and equipment dealers. Arrangements are being made by the Agricultural Engineering committee of the Agricultural Extension Council.
"It is felt that farmers have made much more progress in the adoption of labor saving equipment and efficiency of field work than they have in the handling of livestock and feed in their barns and feed lots," Farm Adviser Trull says. "The purpose of the tour is to see what can be done

This Week.. at Dixon Springs
It's a beautiful fall day . . . the best time of the year to look over the Station beef herd. Cows and calves never looked better. The cows' hides have filled with fat that will help them to coast well into a rough winter. The calves are plump with milk fat, their bodies have broadened and deepened and their hair coats are long and silky.
The herds are serene and satisfied this year more than most. Plentiful summer rainfall and well-fertilized pastures have back-logged an abundance of belly-filling grass, clover and lespedeza—all mature and high in energy.
Take A Tour
A tour of the east side of the Station on an Indian summer morning, over the rolling green of ladino and grass on the Boas pasture with its patchwork of red, purple, yellow and orange woods, helps to erase all trace of little everyday worries and problems. Even a wily red fox appeared to be captivated by the charm of the day as he lay in a shallow draw and let us drive within picture-taking distance before he looped away, only to be nearly run down by a fleeing deer.
This was not the first deer, but the second, to be seen this morning. Nor was he the last. Another was grazing in fescue on the back side of the Austin tract—fescue onto which the cow herd will be turned following round-up and weaning of the calves. This fescue, deep and green, has just enough ladino clover mixed with it to furnish a good supply of nitrogen. One of the cow herds should use it until well after Christmas before feeding will be necessary.
Round-up Near!
The week of November 10 is round-up on the Station—a week carrying with it some of the color, romance and excitement of the "Old West." Over 900 head of cattle—cows, calves, yearlings and bulls—will be driven by cow ponies and punchers from pasture to corral for weaning, health checks, production testing and branding.
Then, after round-up, comes Thanksgiving.
H. A. Cate.

The Chiang Illusion

The Nationalist Chinese plainly are chafing under the frustrations of their odd position.

It was of course with reluctance that Chiang Kai-shek promised Secretary of State Dulles that he would not use force as a principal means of achieving his goal of recapturing the Communist-held mainland.

Since that time, others of his government have made sounds that could be interpreted as a partial repudiation of that pledge. Vice President Chen Cheng talks of the Nationalists' responsibility to "counterattack against the mainland."

Chiang himself speaks as if he were hedging as much as he could on his promise.

While he publicly places his chief hopes of a mainland return on an anti-Communist uprising there, he declares nevertheless that his government is prepared to rely 70 per cent on political means and but 30 per cent on military means to attain that objective.

There probably is not a military analyst anywhere outside Formosa — if even there — who imagines that a 100 per cent military effort by Chiang's modest forces, let alone a 30 per cent effort, would go far toward the overthrow of the Peiping Red regime.

Thus the real grain of substance in what Chiang says is his hope of internal mainland revolt. Why, then, the persistent necessity for seeming to keep the door open for a Nationalist military effort?

The reason would appear to be that Chiang and his government are trying desperately to sustain an illusion — that he and his forces will in fact reconquer the mainland and restore China to freedom.

All the available evidence suggests there is no prospect of a rebellion against the Red Chinese regime in the long foreseeable future. Chiang must know that the millions of overseas Chinese, whom he believes look to his government for hope, understand this as well as he.

Therefore he cannot quite shut the door on military enterprise. He must dangle this illusion before the hopeful as a slender but perhaps persuasive alternative. For to acknowledge there is no real hope for either military effort or internal uprising would be to announce the futility of his regime.

This Chiang can never do, obviously. For without that illusion he becomes simply the aging governor general of a modest-sized Pacific island.

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Art Linkletter was in fine form before 3,500 citizens at the Arizona State Fair.

Breezing through his daily Houseparty TV show, he exchanged quips with the oldest maid in the audience, galloped a horse down the race track, chatted about the Wild West with a 92-year-oldster atop a stage coach, watched three housewives try to lift-wrap Christmas hams (live) and gifted a pair of newswomen with a door prize (a door).

But the biggest response from the Phoenixians came at the end of the show when Art sat down for a quiet conversation with four 6-year-olds.

It's possible that after all the pie-throwing are forgotten, Linkletter will be remembered for his conversations with kids. After a year, his book, "Kids Say the Darndest Things," refuses to budge from the best-seller list. Besides his daily stint on the Houseparty show, clips from past programs are now being syndicated as "Linkletter and the Kids."

A sample of the Phoenix dialogue:

Art: Who's the boss in your family?

Girl: My mother.

Art: How's that?

Girl: She's older.

How does Linkletter manage to evoke choice comments from the youngsters? It's not a matter of chance.

"The secret of our success is in planning," the emcee explained.

"Our teacher, Dorothea Fitzgerald, works with the schools in lining up the children. The important thing is not to get the smartest ones, but the kids who are liable to say something bright and provocative."

"On the day of the show, Dorothea picks up the kids at their school and interviews them on the way to the studio. Shortly before I go on the air, she hands me outlines of what the kids can talk about. I study them a few seconds and I'm ready for the show."

"It's easy to get good results if you know your subjects. That's why I feel it was ridiculous to fix those quiz shows. If you know your contestants' fields of knowledge, you can easily plan questions to make them win or lose."

Communication

Dear Editor:

Your article appearing in Thursday's Courier "Voters must hand Ballots to Judge" held particular interest for me, and I feel sure will be appreciated by the voting public at large.

Coming from the larger cities where voting machines are in use, newcomers to smaller places the size of Jacksonville are unfamiliar with the voting procedures in Morgan County.

This is the first description of correct voting procedure I have seen printed in your paper, and will be most helpful in preventing unnecessary embarrassment at the voting places in the future.

Thank you for the enlightenment on a most important political practice. I am,

Very truly yours,
Mrs. Edward Wheeler,

Civil Rights Act Was No Factor in 1958 Election

BY PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—Possibilities that the highly-touted Civil Rights Act of 1957 would be an important factor in 1958 elections didn't materialize.

Val Washington, minorities' director of the Republican National Committee, believes that this legislation may have increased Negro voting registration a little—maybe two or three per cent. But practically all of this increase has been in districts where Negroes were free to register before.

A great drive to get Negro voters to register in the South was predicted by National Assn. for Advancement of Colored People after the law was passed. It just didn't happen. Local pressures were too strong.

ENFORCEMENT OF THE NEW LAW has been practically nil, though it has been on the books over a year. So far, the Department of Justice new civil rights division under Asst. Atty. Gen. W. Wilson White has filed one case.

This is the Dawson, Ga., case involving five Negroes denied the right to register on grounds they could not read intelligently. Four of the five were school teachers. The suit seeks an injunction requiring Terrell County, Ga., registrars to end discriminatory practices. The case has been set for trial in the January term of court.

Department of Justice has another 15 or 20 civil rights cases under investigation and in preparation. None came to a head before election day.

Hundreds of complaints have been received. In some, the evidence isn't considered strong enough for presentation to a grand jury. In others, complainants and witnesses won't sign affidavits for fear of losing jobs.

THE SIX - MEMBER Civil Rights Commission under Dr. John A. Hannah was likewise unable to complete any investigations before election day.

It has announced hearings in Montgomery, Ala., beginning Dec. 8, on the refusal of Macon County registration officials to turn over voting records to commission investigators.

The commission has other cases under investigation in Florida, Mississippi and one as yet unidentified northern state. That's all in the political field.

Even though the new civil rights law hasn't worked out as expected, one other thing has given the Negroes more desire to vote, says the GOP's Val Washington. This is the action of Gov. Orval Faubus in Arkansas.

"They're talking about it," says Washington. "It's something they can understand. They want to know what the President and the Department of Justice are doing about it. And they want to know what they can do."

THE GOP OFFICIAL reports that, for the first time, Republican National Committee has been receiving small sums of money from Negro groups in places like Richmond, Va., and Savannah, Ga. It's only a few hundred dollars at a time. But every little bit is appreciated.

Three months ago, says Washington, that wouldn't have happened. Being among the first workers to be laid off in the recession, Negroes have been unemployed and on relief the longest. They had no money for politics.

Now that employment is picking up, they are beginning to think about doing something.

The World Today

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Democrats had better watch their steps.

They're riding high after Tuesday's elections, with visions of a reprieve in 1960. But they face problems these next two years. So does President Eisenhower in dealing with them.

These past two years the Democrats have outnumbered the Republicans 49-47 in the Senate, and 235-200 in the House. In the next two years they'll outnumber them 62 to 34 in the Senate, and at least 281 to about 153 in the House.

With these overriding majorities in both houses they'll be in a far better position to shape and put through the kind of programs they want. And if Eisenhower falters in his leadership they may wind up doing most of the leading.

But these big majorities mean they'll also have to take more responsibility for any failures to put through Congress what the people want. When their margin over the Republicans was smaller, the two parties could blame each other for what went wrong.

By the same token, of course, the Democrats can claim credit for the good things. It would seem that by sticking together on programs with voter appeal the Democrats can grease their way towards the 1960 elections.

But the balance among the Democrats — between Southern conservatives and more liberal Northerners and Westerners — was changed Tuesday in favor of the latter.

This may mean sharper in-fighting between the two groups, and it certainly will in the field of civil rights. The spectacle of Democrats split and wrangling won't increase their 1960 appeal.

And no matter how good the Democrats' legislative record is these next two years, there's still a chance the party will split wide open at the 1960 convention over civil rights.

If that happens — if the Southerners walk out or rally around a third party in the South — the door is opened for a Republican victory. The Southern members of Congress will think twice before letting that happen. For this reason:

In this Democratic Congress Southerners hold a majority of the committee chairmanships, which are prize plums. They'd lose the chairmanships if the Republicans won.

From the standpoint of party harmony the Democrats are lucky to have as their leaders — Sen. Lyndon Johnson in the Senate and Speaker Sam Rayburn in the House — two Texans who are two of the best congressional generals in this century.

They're real pros. If anyone could keep the party rolling smoothly, they should. But it's going to be tougher for them to call the shots these next two years than in the past two because they have more Democrats to handle now.

Because of their Tuesday victory the Democrats — if they stick together — are in a more dominant position than in any Congress since early New Deal days to tell a president what kind of programs he can have, and how much.

For just that reason Eisenhower — if he hopes to get his programs through — will have to work even harder at getting along with the Democrats. He's been pretty successful at it ever since they took control of Congress in 1954.

But, since he'll have to try to get along, he won't be in a position to play partisan politics with the Democrats. So the Republicans, if they hope to find leadership that will carry them to victory in 1960, must look elsewhere than to Eisenhower these next years.

And Vice President Nixon, even though he has presidential ambitions, can't very well take a rough ride with the Democrats while Eisenhower plays it nice. The Democrats are not dumb enough to stand for a double-play at their expense.

What has happened was that despite a history of distinguished professors and distinguished graduates Andover had declined, while the Congressional constituency to which it belonged in a sense it belonged without becoming Unitarian had moved into much more liberal opinions and attitudes.

So far as I could judge, few would express their Christian convictions in the exact terms of the creedal statement in the Andover foundation, and fewer still of more conservative would have made their beliefs a test of the fitness of Christian scholars to teach. The whole situation had moved toward freedom, but there were substantial assets of the old Andover, tied up with rigid creedal statements in the foundation that made legal aspects a distinct problem in adjustment with a situation that had changed.

It was the old problem of a devout, determined dead hand seeking to tie up the future with its own outlook and limitations of belief. It is a problem that goes much beyond that Andover situation, and that has much to do with freedom and progress.

In any case "visitors" of Andover opposed the union in the courts, and won. I need not go into the complications and frustrations of the years that followed, but the court eventually authorized the union of Andover with the Newton Seminary, and here began an association that has been outstanding in its quality and effectiveness.

Here, I think, is a significant aspect of the seminary union that has a very distinct bearing upon the matter of ecumenicity and Christian union. While mergerists are talking and advocating ecumenicity in terms of organizational cohesion here are Congregationalists and Baptists working together effectively in a situation in which the freedom of neither group has been compromised.

If the history of Andover is an evidence of what legalisms and theological dogmas can do to offset freedom of religious action, the present Andover Newton is an evidence of what Christians of good will can accomplish in and for freedom.

Wild Turkey Was an Early Bird at Thanksgiving Feast:

BY GAYNOR MADDOX,
NEA Food and Markets Editor

Wild turkey, of course, was the main dish at the first Thanksgiving feast. Today, if there is a hunter in the family, you may serve one for your modern gala dinner.

How do you roast it? The informative new 72-page book "Wild Game Cookbook," by Martin Rywell, gives a delicious answer. Here it is:

Wild Turkey, Tenderloin Flavored Wild turkey, lemon juice, olive oil, salt, pepper, allspice, onion, smoked, and boned pork tenderloin, butter.

Clean Rub with lemon juice, then with salt, pepper and allspice. Fill cavity with pork tenderloin. Do not fill too full. Sew Truss. Brush with olive oil mixed with pinch of mace. Place in 350 degree F. oven and allow 15 minutes per pound. Baste often with melted butter and water. Before serving, remove pork tenderloin and serve tenderloin separately.

How to enjoy leftover turkey is always a household problem after Thanksgiving. Here's one pleasant answer:

Second-Day Turkey Towers Lettuce, stuffing, cranberry sauce, leftover cooked turkey, slices of toasts, leftover turkey and raisins, coffee, tea, nuts.

Why Bother With Varmints?Something About A Hunt Brings Out Tall Tales In KentuckyBY JOE CREASON
Louisville Courier Journal

Staff Writer

Now that there's a nip in the night air and an occasional fringe of frost on the pumpkins, the greatest group of tall-tale tellers this side of the Burlington Liar Club is ready for action.

These spinners of large stories are the raccoon and fox hunters of rural Kentucky, a sturdy breed of men who this time of year take to the woods on all-night chases and free-style lying contests.

Most coon and/or fox hunts in this state are similar. The hunters—as few as three or four and as many as a dozen—get to the woods about sundown, build a roaring fire, start a pot of coffee and let the dogs loose. Then they squat close to the fire to drink coffee so strong it would take the paint off the barn roof, listen to the dogs run and swap stories.

From experience with such night owls in all parts of Kentucky, I would find it hard to say for sure whether all liars are coon or fox hunters, or whether all coon or fox hunters are liars.

However, I'm firmly convinced that one or the other is the positive definition of character of a coon or fox hunter, once he leaves civilization and heads into the wilds.

Before he sets out to pursue an elusive varmint that he doesn't really want to catch, just chase the coon or fox hunter after chase makes certain he has:

1. At least one hound dog with ears the size of bed sheets and eyes so sad you expect him to bust out boo-hoing any second.

2. No regard for hours or weather, since normally he spends the chilly hours from 6 in the p.m. to 2 or 3 in the a.m. several times a week hovering over the campfire while the dogs "make music" in the distance.

3. A large supply of stories based on the exploits of hunting dogs he has owned or known intimately.

Of the three, I would say the last probably is most important. The stories must be elastic enough to expand if the occasion demands. That is, they must be open at the end so that they can be expanded. The first teller, you see, has no more chance than a candle in a monsoon, once hunters start talking about the merits of their dogs.

From Game Warden

It isn't often that a fox or coon hunter is completely topped in story telling. Still, I've seen it done.

For instance, one cold night in early November four years ago down in Metcalfe County, I heard J. W. Thompson, a game warden, uncock this one:

"This man I know had a wonderful coon dog. Why, he could take a piece of wood, whittle out a coon the size he wanted, give it to the dog and he'd hunt until he found one that size."

"But one day the man's wife left her ironing board on the back porch. The coon dog saw it and headed into the woods."

"He never came back. But the man figured he ran clean out of the country looking for a coon the size of that ironing board."

Another time I was on a hunt down at Kentucky Woodlands Wildlife Refuge, when Hugh Coth-

eran of Eddyville took first place with this one:

"I had a dog that, once he treed a coon, wouldn't move a muscle until the critter was taken. One night on a hunt, I lost the dog. I looked everywhere, but couldn't find him."

"A year later, I was hunting again in the same woods when I came on the skeleton of my dog under a big tree. His head was pointing up into the branches."

"You won't believe it," he figured correctly, "but on a limb in that tree was the skeleton of a coon."

Somebody on a hunt in McCreary County two years ago pulled this one:

"I was down in the Smoky Mountains hunting with a man one night when a bear took off after him."

"This man ran toward a tree and jumped for the first limb, 20 feet up."

"Naturally he missed that limb, but grabbed it on the way down."

But the 100-proof crowner of all is the ironic yarn unveiled by that mighty tale teller, Charley Aaron of Russell Springs. It concerns an uncle of his.

"This was a mighty cold winter," Aaron began, "and coons were scarce. One day, my uncle walked down by the river, which was frozen over, and saw a coon track. He followed the track to a big hollow tree that literally was packed with coons. He couldn't get the coons out and the tree was too big to chop down."

"Then my uncle had a brain-storm, or at least a pretty good blow. He ran to the house and came back with a bucket of water and a sack of shelled corn. He scattered the corn on the ice of the river and then covered it with the water."

"Next morning my uncle came back and found 99 coons frozen to the ice. They'd come out after the corn, and the water had frozen around their feet."

Serial Story—

Junior, A Watch-bird

By D. W. Hendrickson

Synopsis: Chuck Anders cares for a storm-orphaned crow which he names Junior. He intends for Junior to go back to the wilds near their summer cabin but the bird stows away and rides in the car trunk to the city. It gets into so much mischief that Chuck promises to keep it in a box at night. Junior hides, however, and that night he gives the alarm when the neighbor's house catches fire. The fire department makes short work of the blaze.

Chapter 7: Trip For Junior

The Tucker family was in the Anders' house, and Mrs. Tucker and Mrs. Anders were getting breakfast for everybody.

Chuck was out in the yard giving Junior his breakfast of cracked corn when Mr. Tucker came out and asked how it happened that Chuck knew about the fire in time to wake up the family. Chuck told him about Junior's part in the matter.

"Say, Junior, you old watch-bird, you," said Mr. Tucker as he reached down and stroked Junior's head. "It's a good thing for us that you waked Chuck. But wait, how did you happen to be out? I thought Chuck was putting you in a box at night?"

"I was until last night, but Junior was too smart for me, and I don't think I'll get him in a box again. But don't you worry, Mr. Tucker. I'll think of something so Junior won't open your milk bottles."

"Junior's A Hero!" Mr. Tucker put his hand on Chuck's shoulder. "Why, I wouldn't be ungrateful enough to take a gun to a bird that saved our lives. He deserves a medal. I'll just have the milkman put the milk in a box with a lid on it."

"With a crow-proof lock," added Mr. Anderson. "Junior's a mighty smart bird, Chuck. I wonder how he knew to wake you when that fire started?"

"Well, I think Junior, like all wild creatures has an instinctive fear of fire, and so he came to me because I take care of him."

When the others went into the house, Chuck stayed behind. He had some things to think about.

Junior flew up on his shoulder and begged for more corn, which Chuck fed him from his fingers, a gain at a time.

"Well, Junior, I guess you can stay here now. All the neighbors will be patient with you and your tricks now that you are a hero. But that won't last very long. I guess the city's no place for a crow. Back to the country you must go, but I know I won't like it."

Away To The Hills

The next Saturday Junior perched on the back of the seat of the car as Chuck and his father drove back to the Ozark hills.

They were almost at the little road that wound from the highway down to their cabin, when the crow became very excited. He pecked at the car window and cawed hoarsely.

"I think he sees that flock of crows off there," said Chuck. "Let's let him out and see what he does."

When the window was open, Junior flew out and straight toward that noisy flock. At his approach, the cawing increased, and after a few scattered flights, the whole flock rose and headed south.

Their strong wide wings soon dwindled the black crow-cloud until it was only a dot in the distance.

"Looks like Junior just made it in time for the trip south," laughed Mr. Anders.

"Yes, I hope he gets along all right. I'm glad he's gone. A crow can be an awful nuisance." But Chuck couldn't help but hope that next summer Junior would be back at the Ozarks cabin and greet him with a gay, "Hi, Junior!"

Chapter 2: The Puzzling Note

Billy and Georgie's Daddy promises to tell them about the old muzzle-loading shotgun with which he has just saved Cocky the rooster by killing a dangerous chicken hawk.

Both boys tagging closely at their father's heels, followed him into the barn. Laying the old shot gun on his work bench, Daddy reached for a clean rag nearby. Taking a small bottle from the shelf overhead, he put a few drops of oil onto the clean rag. Wrapping it tightly around the gun's ram-rod, he inserted the rod into the end of the old gun's muzzle, and began to move it gently back and forth with a slight twisting motion, cleaning the burned gunpowder from inside the barrel.

"You know boys," Daddy told his two small sons, who now sat perched on stools intently watching their father, "This old shot gun was once a very fine gun. Now it is a collector's item, because it has been replaced by new repeater shotguns. But even today the guns do not shoot any more accurately than this one of Great-Grandfather's."

Gun Kicks

"Did Great-Grandfather let you shoot it?" questioned Georgie.

"Yes, one time he did," laughed Daddy as he folded his oil rag and placed it back on the shelf.

"It almost knocked me down. Great-Grandfather had a good laugh over that. When he saw I was about to cry, though, he patted me on the shoulder, and said,

"Will, someday this gun will be yours, boy. When you're really old enough to handle it. Then will be time enough for you to shoot it."

"And that's why it's yours now?" asked Billy.

"Yes, Great-Grandfather gave it to me in his will. Outside of the farm and this gun, that's about all Great-Grandfather left anyone. Oh, yes," said Daddy remembering, "he did leave me one more thing."

"What was that?" questioned Billy eagerly.

"A puzzle," answered Daddy with a smile.

"Whew!" exclaimed Billy squirming on his stool. "What kind of a puzzle?"

Mysterious Note

"It was a little note with my name written on the outside. When Great-Grandfather died, I was still only a small boy—too young to understand it. But even since I have grown, I have not been able to figure out what the note tries to tell me."

"What do you mean, Daddy," asked Billy, his eyes sparkling.

"The note was in the form of a riddle. Great-Grandfather always liked puzzles and riddles. 'Exercises a lad's thinkin', he used to say."

"What did the note say?" questioned Georgie. "Perhaps Billy and I can help you."

"Ha! Ha!" laughed Daddy. "All right let's see if you can."

Father reached into his hip pocket and removed his billfold. "I keep a copy of the note here in my billfold. I've read it so many times trying to figure out the riddle, that I've almost worn the paper to pieces. Here it is:"

"The boy I know has 'come a man,

"My gun I leave to him—Small fingers and a clever mind. And treasures rich will come to him."

Where Will Kit Go?

By Mrs. Otto Dorr

Part 1: Tree Is Growing

Black Kit pounced on the rustling oak leaves tossed by a stormy wind, then crouched at the tree trunk to smooth his rumpled fur.

"Where are they going?", he wondered as drifts of brown leaves rushed by.

The oak dropped his voice down to the kitten's nook to rumble, "Away, away, away, they are going away."

Surprised, Kit turned around to look far up into branches.

"Why?" he asked.

"It is too cold for my leaves in the twigs-top. They are looking for shelter where they can pack thickly. I am going where it is warm too," the tree answered. "Aren't you?"

"No, I do not like to travel," Kit looked hard at the old tree quite sure that it had never left the yard. "I get a new fur coat every winter. Do you expect to fly to California or Florida?"

"Thank you," the oak replied patiently. "I have my own escalator. It takes me deep down to my roots where it is always cozy. In your fur coat that comfortable?"

Black Kit's whiskers twitched. "I wouldn't care to live with wiggly ants or fumbling moles."

"Oh," the tree continued, "We have a real vacation, no one ever has to work. Once in a while a mole will get a little restless and tease to climb up to the lawn. Then I ask 'Do you think that you could act as a rabbit?' There's nothing else to find there in the winter." I tell him to creep back into a hammock of rootlets I have made. Perhaps he went to sleep on a lumpy bed that could not be comfortable, so he clambers in without another word."

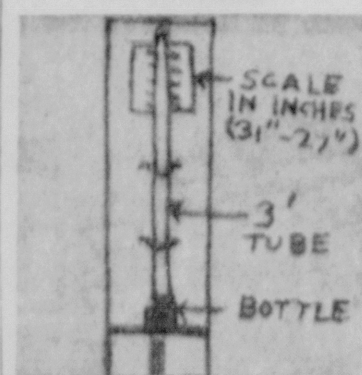

"With ants?" asked Kit.

How To Be A Weatherman

By Joe Smith

Air Pressure

The very reason for the existence of a wind is the existence of two unequal pressure centers or areas, and air in the form of wind always tries to rush from the area of HIGH PRESSURE to the LOW PRESSURE region.

Of course the direction of the wind may greatly affect the local temperature and precipitation.

A column of air one inch square from sea level to the top of the atmosphere will weigh about 14.7 pounds. A column of mercury also one inch square will balance with the air at around 30 inches up its glass tube.

Usually, high temperatures produce low pressure, and low temperatures go along with high pressure. There are, of course, exceptions.

The pressure of the air about us (the lower atmosphere layers) is the thickest and heaviest; a mercury barometer will drop one inch for each 1,000 feet increase in height above ground. If we climbed a mountain to 17,500 feet we would have over a half of the earth's atmosphere below us.

The more intense the low pressure area and the greater the difference between such High and Low pressure areas, the stronger the winds that flow between them.

The average sea level barometric pressure reading is 30 inches; therefore barometers are all "corrected" to sea level before reading.

Pressure is usually read in inches or millibars.

In effect, a mercury barometer works on the idea that outside air pressure will push a column of liquid up to the height where the height-per-square-inch of atmosphere and mercury are equal. An Aneroid Barometer uses pressure on a vacuum box and shows changes by means of a pointer over a scale divided in inches.

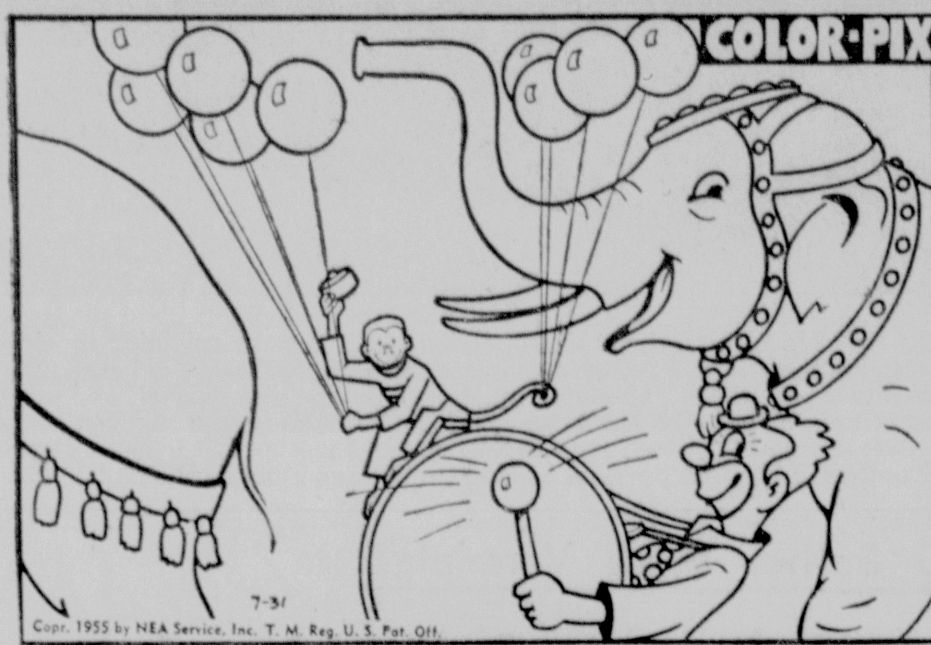

A simple mercury barometer can be made by sealing one end of a clean glass tube about 1/4 inch in diameter and a yard long, and filling it with mercury.

Now cover the open end with your finger and invert the tube a small jar or dish of mercury. When you remove your finger the mercury will fall to a height equivalent to the atmospheric pressure at the time.

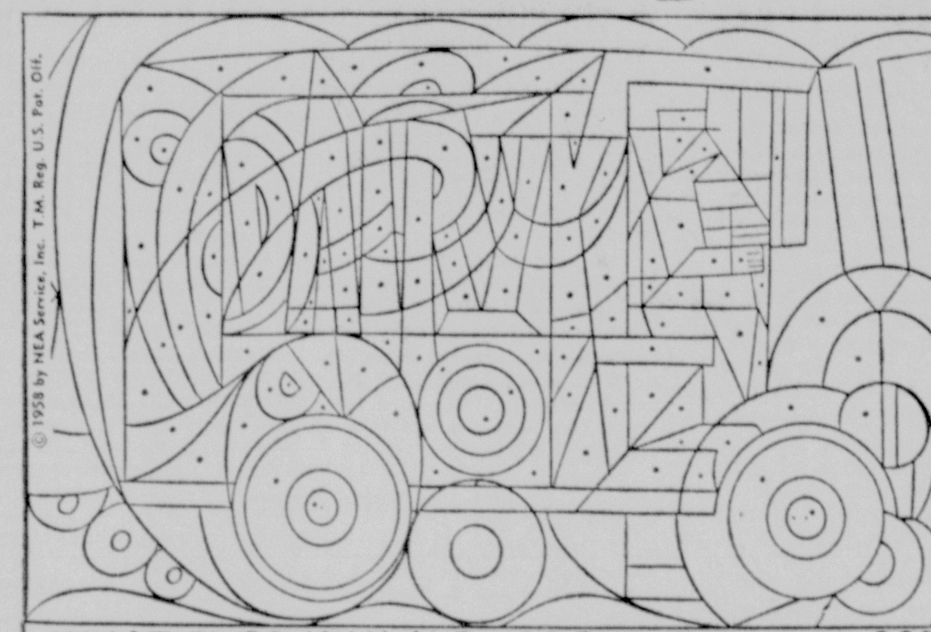

Don't let any air get into the tube in the process. (See diagram, also Boy Scout Merit Badge Pamphlet page 36 and 37.)

LIVING IN SPACE

By Walter B. Hendrickson Jr.

Every space ship that carries more than one person will have at least two air-tight compartments with an airlock between these spaces.

If one of these compartments is punctured by a meteor or springs a leak, the people in it can take refuge in the other compartment after which someone can put on a space suit and return to the damaged compartment to repair it.

To make sure that these compartments are not punctured too often, space ships will be provided with a double outer hull.

All but the largest meteors will explode when they hit the outer shell, and will not puncture the inner wall. Space ships will probably also have a self-sealing fluid in the space between the two hulls as some auto tires now have.

The air these precautions keep inside the ship will be kept breathable by the use of green plants similar to the way Earth's air is kept fresh by plants. Since, with no gravity, the air would remain still it will be circulated artificially.

In a weightless space ship exhaust fans will draw the stale air from the living compartments and it will then be piped into the air-conditioning plant where some of the impurities will be removed. It will next be pumped through tanks full of algae (the green water plant you see on ponds). The algae will remove the carbon dioxide from the air as plants do on Earth.

The air will finally be circulated through dehumidifiers which will remove excess water vapor and return this to the ship's water supply. The freshened air will now be circulated through the ship's living quarters.

It Can Happen Here

By Emma Mae Leonhard

Were you one of the fortunate who saw the glowing autumn reds of Dogwoods and Maples on the hillsides and cliffs of Calhoun County or of Pere Marquette Park? Or were you one of those who stayed at home and enjoyed Dogwoods and Maples just as brilliantly painted by the brushes of autumn?

Perhaps you were one of those few who had both experiences and who, in some cases, had to admit that the trees at home were even more brightly colored than those which they had traveled some distance to see.

We heard several who had motored down from Chicago during the third week in October say that Jacksonville offered them a far more beautiful autumn picture of reds and golds than did any other place along the way.

Yes, during those many warm sunny days of October, Jacksonville was a panorama of sunset shades, never too bright for the human eye but too richly red for man-made paints on a canvas. You didn't have to leave home to catch the spirit of autumn splendor, did you?

Neither do you bird watchers have to drive hundreds of miles to experience an unusual day in the field. We are not implying that you bird watchers must see something new on every trip, for you can enjoy old bird friends also.

Every fall you feel cheated if you miss seeing or hearing the geese, the plovers, the sparrows, the hawks, and other migrating birds which visit you regularly. Old friends can be as satisfying as new ones, we all agree.

However, you bird watchers can make new friends also. For instance, you may not know that the very spectacular woodpecker, the Pileated Woodpecker, can be found in your birthing area. It is a very silent bird except in the spring and is seldom seen except by patient or by lucky watchers.

We have chanced to find it in the woods along Mauvalterre Creek at the foot of the Boddy Hill. We have also seen or heard it several times at Smith Lake, not too far from Mercedosa. You must look for it in extensive woodlands.

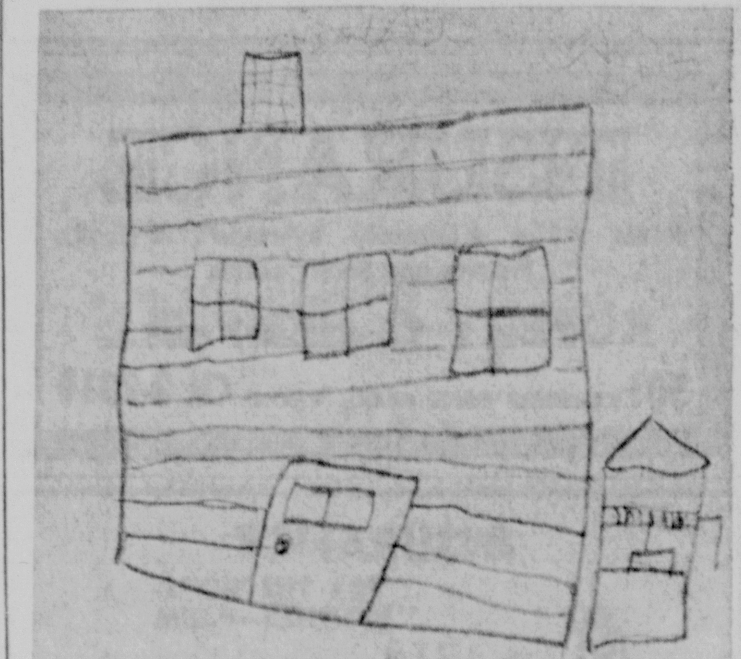

How can you find it, you ask, if it is such a seclusive and shy bird. Its call usually announces its whereabouts—a long call consisting of the same note "repeated first with a rising, then with a falling inflection, a good deal like that of a flicker but louder, deeper, and more full-throated," as Richard Pough describes it.

This woodpecker's hole, which it digs in tall trees, is large and oval or oblong. This cavity is a sure evidence of the bird's presence in that territory.

If you are fortunate enough to see the Pileated Woodpecker fly, here.

Log Cabin And Well

When Roger Anderson was a member of the Ashland kindergarten he went to New Salem with his class and saw this log house with the well beside it. Roger's careful picture shows how the bucket is drawn up out of the well by the rope being wound around on the pole.

LAMP EYES
By Rip Barnsdall

The common name of this fish is often broken into two words, Lamp Eyes. It is another of the aquarium fishes which originally came from Africa. Full length Lamp Eyes' reach a length just over one inch.

They are egg-layers and fairly hard to breed in the aquarium.

Scientifically known as Aplocheilichthys macropthalmus, this little fish captures the hearts of aquarists about 25 years ago when it was first introduced to this country.

Shining Eyes

The upper part of the eyeballs is a light green in color. When light from the aquarium reflectors shines down on it, a rather eerie glow is cast off. Its body is pale green in color.

As it flits about the aquarium it almost looks like a miniature comet. Lamp Eyes prefer slightly acid water.

They aren't too hardy, but if conditions are right for them they will thrive. It makes a good aquarium fish, but because of its preference for slightly acid water, it is better to keep it by itself, or with other fishes having same preference.

Amelia M. Smith, 60, Killed In Accident; Final Rites Today

Amelia M. Smith, 60, Route 1, Murrayville, was pronounced dead on arrival at Our Saviour's hospital Friday following an auto crash on Route 67, one-half mile south of the South Jacksonville village limits at 4:40 p.m.

Jesse A. Rimbey, Murrayville, was headed south on Route 67 when he attempted a left turn into a driveway. The Smith auto, traveling north, began to brake and skidded into the Rimbey auto at the edge of the pavement. Mrs. Smith was thrown from her car and pinned under the Rimbey auto by the impact of the crash. Passing motorists worked quickly to lift the auto from the woman but apparently to no avail. She was rushed to the hospital by Gooney ambulance and pronounced dead on arrival. Coroner E. O. Sample began an investigation into the death and will schedule an inquest at the Mackey funeral home in Murrayville at a later date.

State trooper Kenneth Lawson attended at the scene of the accident.

Born in City

Amelia M. Smith was born in Jacksonville, November 22, 1897, the daughter of Alfred and Anna Mae Dean Lamb. She is survived by two brothers, Arthur Dean Lamb of Peoria and Lyle Lamb of Beardstown.

She was a member of the Murrayville Methodist church and the Murrayville Order of the Eastern Star.

The body was taken to the Mackey Funeral home in Roodhouse, and later to the Mackey funeral home in Murrayville.

Funeral services will be held at 1:30 p.m. Sunday at the Murrayville Methodist church. The Rev. Richard Seed will officiate. Interment will be in the Murrayville cemetery.

Dem Tide Drowns GOP Hopes

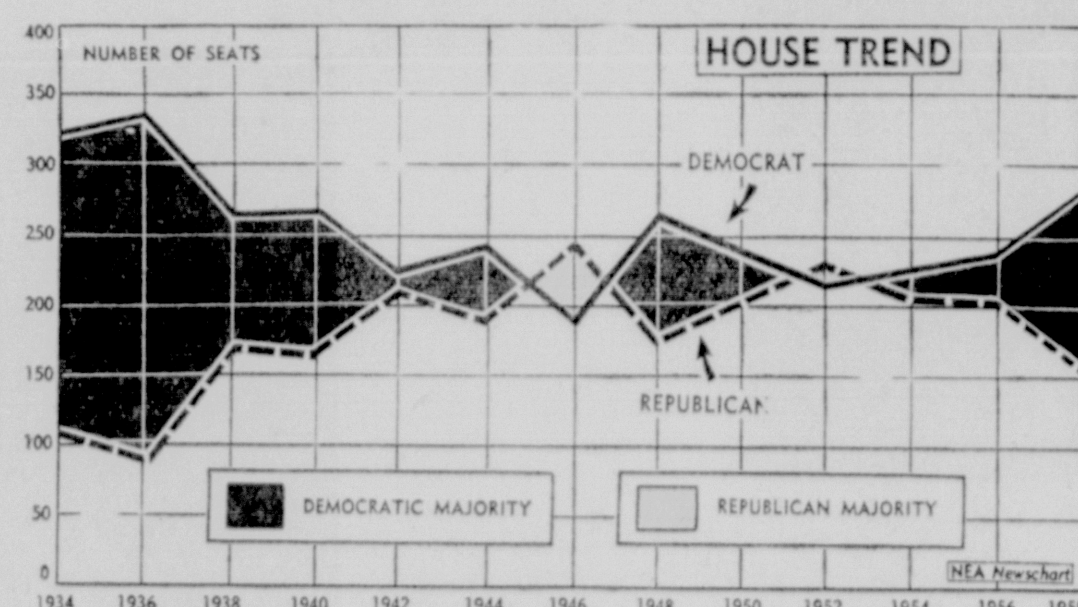

Sweeping victory across the country gives Democrats commanding control of Senate with 62-34 edge, 12 more than a majority. Republicans elected only eight senators.

Democrats took 24 governorships and now hold 33. Republicans elected eight, totaling 14 with six holdovers. Close race in Nebraska hinges on absentee ballots.

Twenty-eight-seat majority in Senate gives Democrats strongest control since peak year of 1936 under Franklin D. Roosevelt. Republicans will occupy only 34 seats.

Nearly complete returns verify Democratic landslide in the House, where they have elected 278 of 435, leading in three unsettled races for an indicated total of 281. GOP took 153.

FOOTPRINTS IN THE DUST—There's a lot astronomers have not yet found out about the moon. Particularly puzzling are the huge dark "seas" they have observed through telescopes. Drawings depict three possible answers the first spacemen might discover when their ships touch down. The first school of thought, left, suggests that the "seas" are a thin layer of dust over a solid surface. Then there are those who say that the dust, as fine as baby powder, is perhaps two miles deep, center. Finally, some adhere to the belief that the areas are covered with hardened lava and will make excellent landing spots.

Orleans Women Hear Of Latest Nutrition Facts

The Orleans Woman's Country Club met on November 4 at the home of Mrs. Clifton Davis. The business meeting was conducted by president Mrs. James Heaton who then introduced the program chairman for the afternoon, Mrs. Charles Drury.

Mrs. Drury gave a resume of the latest reports from nutritional research laboratories throughout the country with a special emphasis on the importance of protein in the diet. Reports from all research groups indicate that an optimum amount of protein in the diet helps to build stamina at every age level, and that better nutrition in youth increases the chances of good health in later years, as well as aiding in the prevention of premature aging.

Poor nutrition frequently is not obvious, but it may produce structural weaknesses which cause loss of resistance and a greater chance of breakdown in times of stress. Research at Cornell University has shown the desirability of a high protein, medium carbohydrate level in the reducing diet.

It was emphasized that meat is the most complete and adequate type of protein food and that each meat product contributes its own particular combination of nutritional elements. Mrs. Drury enumerated the great variety of meat foods available, pointing out the special nutritional factors in each product.

She concluded her diet for health program with a brief history of meat freezing practices and its influence on the availability of meat foods, and gave a preview of some of the newer frozen products soon to appear on the market.

There was a general discussion of diet and health while the hostesses served delicious refreshments to members and guests, who included Mrs. Raymond Anderson, Mrs. Minnie Beamline, and Mrs. Ethel Strawn.

Illinois Squares Off Against Wisconsin For Thirty-Fifth Time

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. — Illinois squares off against Wisconsin Saturday in Memorial Stadium for the thirty-fifth time in a grid series which has been closely contested since it began with a 10-10 tie in 1895.

Neither team has been able to muster more than a three-game lead and most of the contests have been marked by low scores. Wisconsin now leads Illini 16-13 in the series. Five games have ended in ties.

Recent years, however, have seen the Badgers take control of the rivalry, and spoil some Illinois hopes for a Big Ten title and a Rose Bowl bid.

In 1953, an underrated Badger eleven knocked Coach Ray Elletts' squad from the unbeaten ranks, 34-7 at Madison. The loss dropped Illinois to a co-championship and may well have been a factor in swinging the Rose Bowl bid to Michigan State. Wisconsin's point total marked the largest by a winning team in the series.

A fumble in last year's contest turned out to be a big break for Wisconsin. Deep in Badger territory, with Wisconsin leading 17-

13, Illinois lost the ball on a fumble. The Badgers then marched downfield for another score and wrapped up the game. Illinois' touchdowns both came on passes — a 16-yard completion from Tom Haller to Rich Kreitling, and a 27-yard throw from Bob Hickey to DeJestice Coleman.

The 1956 affair ended in a 13-13 defensive deadlock, with all scoring coming on short bursts inside the 10-yard-line. A 17-14 Illini victory in 1955, however, provided fans with many thrills.

A spirited Badger group, playing its last game under Coach Ivy Williamson, fell behind 17-0 at the end of three quarters. Wisconsin roared back in the last quarter, mostly on the passing of Jim Haulka, to score twice and narrow the margin to 17-14. Again, Williamson's squad seized the ball and, with less than four minutes remaining, marched 75 yards playing only to have their drive halted and an attempted field goal fail.

This year, Illini will be seeking their first home win against a Wisconsin football team since 1961, when Illinois won 14-10.

Hannibal 13 12 6 7-38
Pittsfield 0 0 0 13-13

Girard 14 Franklin 12
FRANKLIN — Jim Bower's Flashes battled Girard on even terms here Friday night but failed to connect on two PAT attempts and dropped a very close 14-12 MSM Conference tussle.

The hosts got off to an early lead in the initial period on a seven-yard TD by fullback Tom Francis but Franklin's run for the extra-point was no good. A two-yarder by Hansel and Jenkins' kick for the PAT gave Girard a narrow 7-6 spread in the second period. Then Tom Francis hit paydirt from seven yards out just before halftime and Franklin was on top, 12-7.

Girard's winning tally came in the final stanza on a short plunge by Whitworth. A 35-yard pass play set the score up, Jenkins converted for a 14-12 decision.

Franklin's season came to a close without a victory in eight starts. Girard was 7-1-1.

By quarters:
Girard 0 7 0 7-14
Franklin 6 6 0 0-12

Officials: Blakeman, Jacksonville; Beale, Alton; Keran, Springfield.

Virginia 6 Winchester 6

VIRGINIA — In a hard fought Illinois Valley Conference ball game Virginia and Winchester battled to a 6 to 6 deadlock. Neither team was able to cross the others goal line in the opening period. The entire contest was a battle of defense. Coach Durrell Spang's Wildcats broke out in front in the second period when halfback "Babe" Brown plunged three yards to paydirt. The important try for PAT was stopped and the Wildcats had a 6-0 lead at halftime.

The Virginia Redbirds came back strong in the third frame and evened up the score with David Marr racing 40 yards around end for the tally. The try for PAT that would have proved to be the winning tally failed. Both clubs played outstanding defensive ball in the final chapter as several offensive thrusts by each team were stopped. Coach Harold Hillman's Redbirds finished the season with a 5-3-1 mark. The Winchester club plays its last game next week against Pittsfield.

By quarters:
Pittsfield 6 6 0 0-12
Hannibal 0 0 7 0-7
Officials: Mixer, Phillips, Pinkelman, all of Quincy.

Hannibal 38 Pittsfield 13
PITTSFIELD — Hannibal used its powerful offense to overpower Coach Glen Smith's Saukees here Friday night in a non-conference encounter, 38-13. The loss gave Pittsfield a one win, five loss record with one game remaining against Winchester next week.

Hannibal's Smith started the scoring parade with a 15-yard gully in the first frame to paydirt for a six to nothing lead. Harris plunged for the PAT. Shortly after this Harris broke loose on a 77 yard romp to the end zone and a 13-0 lead.

At the start of the second period Sucker plunged six yards for a six pointer and then Harris started on a long run of 61 yards to put Hannibal out front by 25 big points. The halftime score saw Hannibal on top 25-0.

Hannibal backs ate up yardage in the second period on a long drive and Smith capped it with a one yard plunge for the TD. The PAT was missed. In the fourth stanza Conner took a 30 yard pass from Hardy and then threatened his way for another 30 yards to paydirt. This climaxed the scoring for Hannibal for the night. Pittsfield got its attack going in this frame and Clause

Alton 26 Jerseyville 6
JERSEYVILLE — Elgie Posey's Alton gridgers overshadowed Joe Jurkanin's Panthers here Friday night in Jerseyville's final encounter of 1958, 26-0.

Alton had size and speed to burn and proved to be a stone wall against the smaller Panthers. The winners contained Carl Crawford, Jerseyville's offensive ace, throughout the game without any big gain.

The Panthers were never in scoring position.

Score By Quarters:
Alton 7 6 13 0-26
Jerseyville 0 0 0 0-0
Officials: Boyle, Orr, Selinger, Springfield, and Hull, Bethalto.

Carrollton 37 Greenfield 6

CARROLLTON — After a scoreless first period Ronnie Carter loosened up his throwing arm for three TD strikes in the second quarter and a 19 to 0 half time lead. Carter's first pass was to Robinson good for 30 yards and a TD. Carter then kicked the PAT. Carter's next pass covered 27 yards and found McGuire in the end zone. The try for PAT was no good. A 50 yard pass from Carter to Robinson accounted for the final score of the second period and a 19 to 0 half time lead.

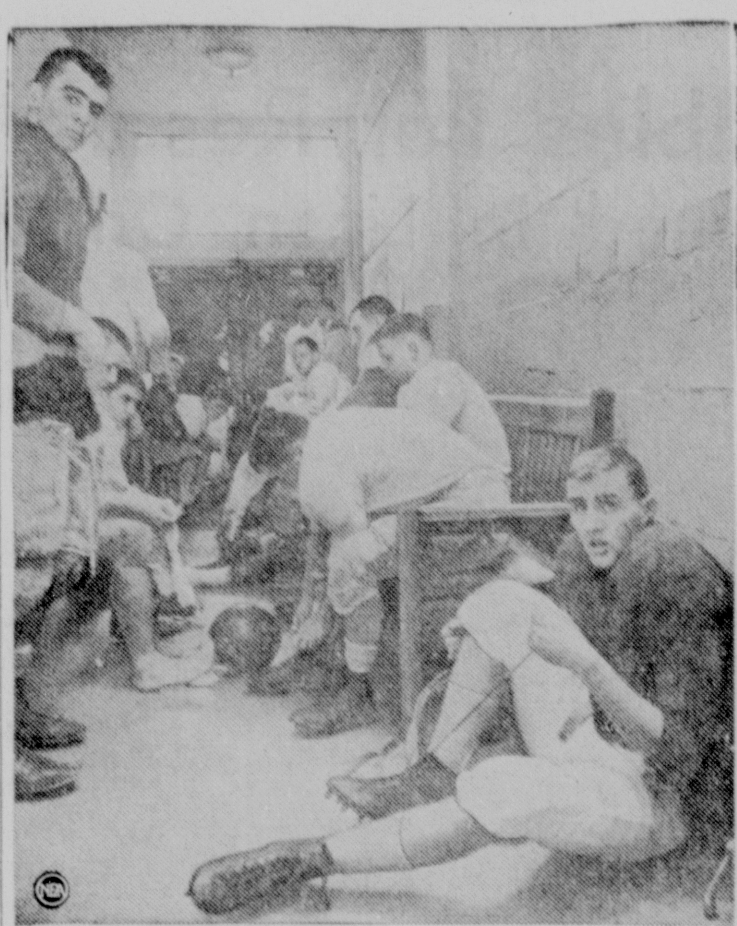

Carter opened up in the third stanza with a two yard plunge good for six points. This was the only score of the third period. In the final chapter Carter plunged three yards for the tally and then Tom Brennan scampered around end for 26 yards and the final score of the contest.

Score By Quarters:
Carrollton 0 19 6 12-37
Greenfield 0 0 0 0-0

GEE!

I have a Savings Account at Farmers

The enthusiasm this youngster shows for a savings account is understandable. This savings account means he has money in the bank, that his parents have already given thought to his college education, and he has learned that a savings account can help make down payments on big purchases.

Why don't you get that wonderful feeling of money in the bank? Open a savings account at FARMERS, add to it regularly, and watch your savings grow.

Neighbors Pick Corn For Penick Farm Friday

NORTONVILLE — Neighbors went to the aid of Lester Penick and picked corn Friday and Saturday. Mr. Penick was about half through corn picking when he fell and broke his right arm.

Those assisting Joe, Bill, Frank and Junior Vedder, Charles and Orval Mutch, Herbert and Ed Clayton, Gid Clausen, Keith Bolton, Donald Witherbee and Jim Wells.

Those assisting Mrs. Penick were Mrs. Lowell Wells, Mrs. Charles Mutch, Mrs. Frank Vedder, Mrs. Bill Vedder and Mrs. Joe Vedder.

Richard Lee Koehler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Koehler, had his cast removed from his arm Saturday. X-rays showed it had not healed sufficiently from the recent break and he will be wearing another cast for three more weeks.

Rover True from St. Louis and a college friend, Louis Ching, who is from S. America, spent the weekend with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert True and Juana.

Donna Koehler spent Thursday night with Judy Davies.

A Halloween party was sponsored by the Nortonville community club members Friday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Leo Clinton and family called on Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Koehler and family Saturday evening.

You can steam foods two ways: in a heavy pan with a tight-fitting cover with just enough liquid to create steam; or in a perforated vessel over a small amount of boiling water in a covered kettle.

Fold a couple of tablespoons of sweetened cocoa mix and a tablespoon of sugar into a cup of whipped cream. Use as a topping for cake slices or a vanilla or orange chiffon pie.

With The Girl Scouts

White Hall, Illinois, leaders will be hostesses to all registered adults in the Illinois Prairie Girl Scout Council at the semi-annual council meeting on Wednesday, Nov. 12. Leaders, assistant leaders and troop committee mothers, along with the Board of Directors and board committee members, will gather at the Methodist church at 1:30 p.m. A business meeting will be followed by a particularly to Christmas crafts, including favors, gifts, ornaments, centerpieces, toys, Christmas cards, etc. It is hoped that a large number of leaders and assistant leaders, or any Scout mother who is interested will take advantage of this workshop.

Girl Scout calendars still remain at the office for sale by the troops and leaders are urged to pick these up at their earliest convenience.

Some camp refunds are still available at the Scout office for those Brownie Scouts who attended the Brownie Day Camp, June 9-13. If this refund money is not picked up by the end of 1958, it will be returned to the council funds for general use.

Mothers interested in Girl Scouts of Troop No. 6 will meet at the Girl Scout office on Monday afternoon at 4:30. The purpose of this meeting is to find leaders for this troop, and all are urged to attend.

Leaders of all troops are reminded that they are to stay at the troop meeting place until all the Scouts have either been picked up or have left for their homes. It would be best if all leaders knew exactly how their girls were getting home, and if girls walk home it is best they go in pairs.

No leader should leave the meeting place if there are girls left behind until arrangements have been made for these girls; also, mothers of Scouts like to know just how their daughters are getting home, and if car pools are arranged all should be notified.

Any notifications or communications desired by leaders can be mimeographed or sent out at any time by the Scout office if we have ample notice and time is allowed for same.

Lynnville Women At Dodsworth Home Recently

Members of the Lynnville Christian church missionary society met at the home of Mrs. Tom Dodsworth, 336 E. Pennsylvania, for the regular monthly meeting.

President, Mrs. Earl Hempel, called the meeting to order by announcing a hymn, sung by the group, followed with prayer. Mrs. Eileen Heaton, secretary, read the minutes of the previous meeting and called roll, to which 15 members responded. A note of thanks was read from C. H. Owens for the donations of jelly sent to the Christian Home by the society.

Mrs. Harold M. Hamel announced that Mrs. Mary Williams would be guest speaker for Woman's Day. A potluck supper will be held at the church for the December meeting. Mrs. Ashbaker was welcomed as a new member.

Gertrude Dodsworth was program leader, her subject being "Our Neighbors: Puerto Rico, Alaska, Hawaii, Haiti." Augusta Hempel spoke on Puerto Rico; Sallie Heaton, Haiti; Mabel Fearneyhough, Hawaii. Lela Jewsbury told of a recent visit to Alaska.

Mamie Schofield gave devotions and her theme was "Widen Your Heart." Mrs. Lettze assisted in devotions with prayer and Mrs. Hempel sang "Holy Spirit, Faithful Guide."

Plans for the annual goose supper were discussed. The meeting closed with the missionary benediction.

During the social hour Mrs. Dodsworth served refreshments from a beautifully appointed table, centered with a lovely autumn centerpiece. Bouquets of colorful fall flowers graced the rooms of the home.

Rehabilitation Programs Help Handicapped Women Carry On Useful Lives

By ALICIA HART
NEA Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON — (NEA) — Not even the terrible paralyzing effects of polio or the loss of an arm or leg can conquer the spirit of the American woman.

A recent nationwide health survey shows that female determination, medical science and vocational training have combined to help thousands of crippled women hold down important jobs.

Officials of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare and the Labor Department's Women's Bureau credit the medical and educational victories to the work of numerous vocational rehabilitation programs.

These are the unique health projects which combine the skills of doctors, psychologists, physical therapists, teachers and social workers to help disabled persons learn how to lead useful lives. Increased emphasis has now been placed on treating handicapped women to help them compete for rapidly expanding job openings. One of the many rehabilitation projects involved is the program operated jointly by Uncle Sam and the states.

Over 90,000 handicapped women have been helped by this medico-vocational system in the last four years. Their afflictions have ranged from heart ailments to the loss of arms and legs.

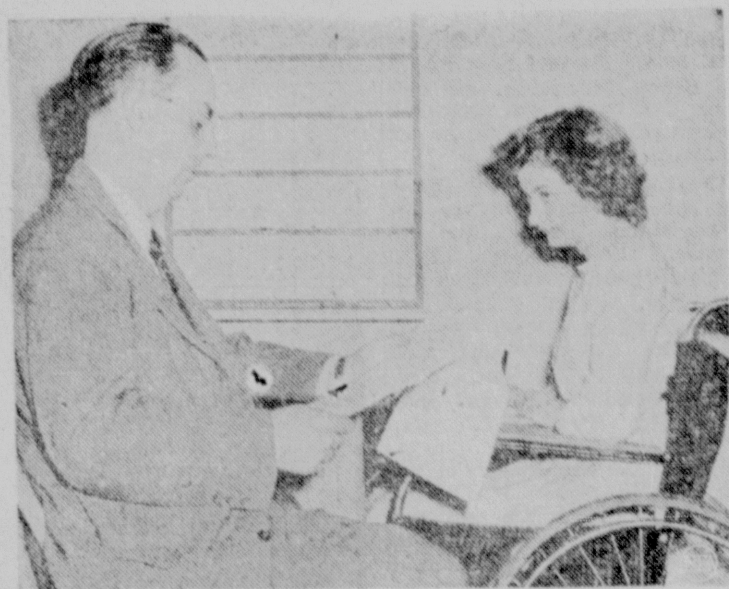

In addition to complicated medical treatment, these federal-state health agencies provide job training and then find employment for many patients. Thus, thousands of afflicted women, who once would have been faced with a life-time of idleness, are now working as teachers, secretaries, nurses, artists and accountants. Others have jobs as telephone operators, cooks, maids and dressmakers.

Health officials explain that training for jobs in the business and professional fields is only one of the program's triumphs. Equally important, they say, is the success that vocational specialists have achieved in teaching these women how to be good homemakers.

Paralytic housewives, who must remain in wheel chairs, are taught how to cook, keep house and take care of the family laundry. Mothers who have lost a hand or an arm learn how to dress and bathe their small children. About 18,000 disabled homemakers have been rehabilitated during the last three years.

THE MANY PROBLEMS faced by crippled housewives have resulted in the start of several research projects to find ways to ease their tasks. For instance, a university is designing special clothes which small children can put on and take off with little or no help from mother. Another research group is analyzing housekeeping activities in order to find the easiest ways to perform them.

Almost 85 million dollars in state and federal funds have been earmarked this year to operate the program. About two-thirds of this amount will be supplied by Uncle Sam, who also sets many of the program's professional standards. State governments, however, supply the medical personnel, teachers and treatment facilities.

Agencies operating under the federal-state set-up usually offer medical examinations, counseling, training and job placement services to patients free of charge. But patients are expected to pay for such things as surgical operations and artificial limbs if they are able to do so.

OTHER REHABILITATION programs are conducted by private agencies and community groups. Also, many civic, professional and business organizations have banded together in the President's Committee on the Employment of Physically Handicapped to encourage employers to hire disabled workers. Labor Department officials explain that the numerous rehabilitation programs have created a demand for well-trained people to help operate them. To help relieve this personnel shortage, Uncle Sam is financing training grants for college students who are interested in entering the rehabilitation field.

Copies of the HEW Women's Bureau report, "Help for Handicapped Women" can be purchased from the U. S. Government Printing Office. The price is 40 cents a copy.

Rural Churches Need Revitalizing, Asserts Conference Speaker

The rural church in America needs revitalizing, Dr. Mark Rich of the Missouri School of Religion declared to 67 pastors and laymen at MacMurray College, Friday evening.

"It needs a new sense of mission in the community, a new outlook, and a new program," he said in the first of a series of addresses at the two-day conference in Henry Pfeiffer library. He was introduced by Dr. Richard Nesmith, Dean of Men and Assistant Professor of Sociology at MacMurray, who is general coordinator of the conference.

"The denominations do not yet take seriously doing what they ought to do about the rural church," he emphasized in pointing out reasons for the current dilemma of country churches.

"Small Churches Are Dying"

In the first place, he said, rural churches are too small to do any effective work. Citing a Missouri study that he made several years ago, Dr. Rich said that more than half of that state's churches have 100 memberships or less. "Churches of this size have a very small prospect of an independent existence. Hence they are dying."

A second major problem of the rural church, he said, is the fact that it does not have adequate ministerial leadership. Many churches are "quarter-churches," which was his description for those having ministers serving them only one-fourth of the time. He even cited one instance of a Missouri minister having 27 churches, "as many as some people have racehorses," the minister was supposed to have said.

Rural ministers are, in large part, inadequately trained, Dr. Rich said. He used again his Missouri survey to show that 40% of ministers in that state had less than a college education.

"Thus it results that rural churches have non-resident, part-time ministers who are inadequately trained and who very often carry on part-time work."

These churches very often have inadequate programs, Dr. Rich continued. More than half the Missouri churches had no week-day programs, he said. As a result, they often divide, rather than unite, a community. The Missouri survey indicated that more than half had no week-day activities. Few participated in inter-church or community activities.

Need "Intelligence, Devotion"

What is the remedy to the dilemma, Dr. Rich asked? Answering his own question, he said that "we should pour into them our intelligence and devotion to give them the kind of guidance that they need."

Further discussions on answers to the dilemma were held after Dr. Rich's address, when the group divided into four 15-man discussion sections with each having a group leader.

This procedure was used throughout the two-day conference, when after each address sectioned discussion sessions would be held.

"The Changing World Pattern" was described by Dr. David Lindstrom of the University of Illinois at a Saturday morning meet. A final address was presented by Dr. Ralph Cummins on "Approaches to the Dilemma." He is a former president of the Presbyterian state Synod and now is director of Friendship House, a social agency in Peoria.

A panel discussion and worship closed the conference Saturday afternoon. On the panel were Dr. Lindstrom, Dr. Cummins, Dr. Nesmith, and Reid Tombaugh, a Methodist layman in a church in Pontiac, and George Trull, farm advisor for the Morgan county Farm Bureau.

Jacksonville Men Attend

Farm representatives from local banks were Ed Garlich of Elliott State Bank, and Leland Perbix, Farmers State Bank. Leading one of the discussion sessions were Dr. Dewey Muir, Jacksonville district superintendent for the Illinois Conference of the Methodist church, and Rev. Harvey Dibrell of Centenary Methodist church.

President Louis W. Norris of MacMurray College brought greetings to the group of laymen and pastors at the opening dinner Friday in McClelland dining hall.

Plan 'Harvest Home' At Church In Mt. Sterling

The fourteenth annual Harvest Home of the Parish of the Larger Vision will be held Sunday in the Mt. Sterling Presbyterian Church.

Dr. Andrew E. Kurth, executive secretary of the United Presbyterian Synod of Illinois, will be the preacher at the festival service which commences at eleven o'clock. Dr. Kurth has been pastor of Westminster Presbyterian Church, Cedar Rapids, Iowa, and comes to his present position in the Illinois Synod from the Department of Stewardship and Promotion of the denomination with office in New York City. He was educated at North Central College and the Evangelical Seminary, Nanterville, Ill. Dr. Kurth is married and the father of three children, all of whom are engaged in religious work. Mrs. Kurth will accompany him to Mt. Sterling. Dr. Kurth will use as his sermon theme: "Visible Gratitude," with text from I Thessalonians 5:18.

The anthems of the eleven o'clock service will be sung by the choir of the local Presbyterian Church and the Federated Church of Clayton with Mrs. Charles E. Turner playing the service.

The morning service will be followed by a basket dinner and the afternoon hymn singing and address. As has been the custom at the Harvest Home the people of the parish churches will bring gifts of canned food for Kemmerer Home at Assumption and free will offerings for the Larger Parish.

Dr. J. Dewey Muir, superintendent of the Jacksonville District of the Methodist church, has been chosen as the speaker of the afternoon. Dr. Muir has been associated with Mr. Tucker in the work which led to the federation of the Methodist and Presbyterian Churches of Clayton. The federation, which is rapidly being completed in all departments of the new church has been very successful and the Clayton church is showing progress. Dr. Muir will speak concerning the state of the rural churches in this latter half of the twentieth century. The special music of the afternoon meeting will be sung by an ensemble from the Fairmount Presbyterian Church.

Churches of the Larger Parish are, besides the Mt. Sterling, Clayton and Fairmount churches, Burton, Hersman, Lee, Mt. Herber, Perry and the Damon Sunday School with the youth of the Rushville Presbyterian Church participating in the work of the parish's Youth Council.

Ministers of the parish are the Rev. Duff Tucker, Aubrey Dunning and Chester O'Neal. Mr. Harry Caldwell is at present a student minister serving at Burton. The Hersman-Lee congregations are in the process of filling their vacancy.

The public is cordially invited to attend any of the services of the Harvest Home.

DECORATORS WORK IN COURT HOUSE AT CARROLLTON

CARROLLTON—The work of redecorating the second floor of the Greene county court house is practically completed and work began this week on the main floor where the offices of Paul Fenty, county superintendent of highways and Mrs. Thelma Wilkinson, county superintendent of schools, are to be redecorated.

The color scheme is green and ivory and the work is being done by the Willie Davis decorators of Roodhouse.

Rural church problems are discussed here as two visitors to Jacksonville listen to Dr. McKendree M. Blair (left), chaplain and Professor of Religion at MacMurray College. He is talking here with Reid Tombaugh, a Methodist layman for a Pontiac church, and Dr. David Lindstrom, right, of the Department of Agriculture Economics at the University of Illinois. Dr. Lindstrom spoke Saturday on "The Changing World Pattern." The three churchmen here are talking in McClelland Dining Hall at MacMurray, immediately before the opening dinner for 67 pastors and laymen attending the conference.

Dr. Mark Rich is declaring here that rural churches are truly in need of help by established churches if they are to continue in existence. He cited a Missouri survey of rural churches in illustrating several reasons for the current low estate of country churches. Dr. Rich, Professor of Religion at Missouri School of Religion, spoke Friday at a conference held at MacMurray College, the theme being "The Dilemma of Rural Churches."

The House on the Beach

THE STORY: It is raining and Katherine is trapped on the roof where she is hiding to escape from Paul, her stepfather. Katherine knows Paul murdered her mother and attempted to make it look like a swimming accident.

THE voices drifted away, leaving nothing behind them but the sound of the rain.

Katherine looked at her watch. It said 10 minutes to seven. She held it to her ear, it was still ticking. The rain hadn't hurt it, anyway.

She felt cramped, and unendurably cold, frozen down to her bones. Her joints were stiff, and as she tried to move, to scoot herself up a little way on the slant of the roof, they gave her a rough, jangling pain. Her headache was still with her, too. She looked down at the terrace. It was running wet.

The next time she looked down at the terrace, the shadows were gone from the bright reflection. It must have been Aunt Millicent before, and now she'd settled down with her magazine for the rest of the evening.

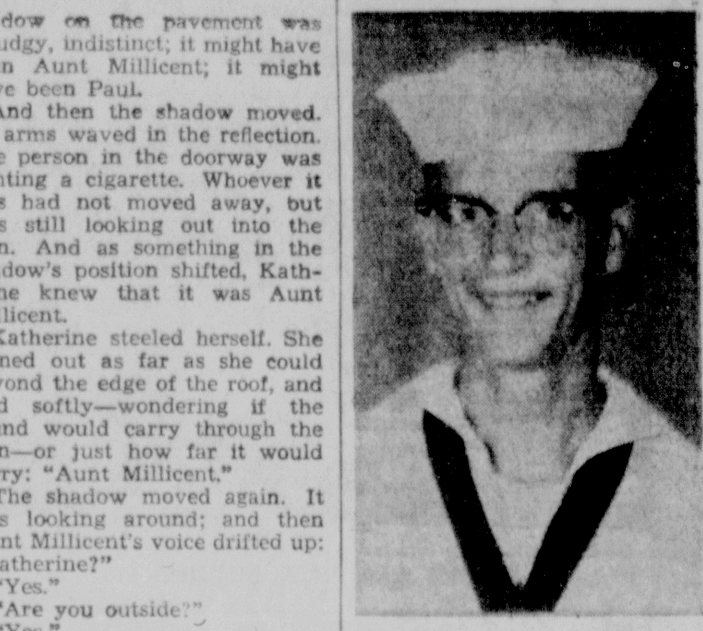

Amy's bedroom was on this side of the house. Could Katherine make her way down the length of the slanting roof? She looked over her shoulder at it, squinting, trying hard to see it clearly, barely able to distinguish a sort of dark, treacherous wetness stretching all around her. If she made even one slip...

It was just at this moment—21 minutes after eight, as she looked at her watch—that she heard a sound from the room below her. She couldn't tell what it was for a second, and then she realized that it was the sound of someone's shoe stepping onto the metal threshold of the long window. Someone was standing there below her looking out into the rain.

She leaned forward again, craning, and peered at the reflection.

She could not make it out clearly. The rain slanted softly across it, and splashed into it, wrinkling the surface. The black
